ACTION LINE is your service, solving your problems, getting your answers, cutting red tape and standing up for your rights. To get action, write ACTION LINE, Box 230, Long Beach, Calif. 90801, or dial 432-3451 between 9 a.m. and 1 p.m., or 5 p.m. and 9 p.m., Monday through Friday. Questions to be answered are selected for their general interest and helpfulness.

Junky Neighborhood

Q. Our new neighbors seem to be running some kind of junk business at their home. Large trucks, much old furniture and other goods fill their driveway, which doesn't do much to improve the looks of our street. Is there a city office where I can lodge a complaint? E.M.M., Long Beach.

GRAFFITI by Leary

A. Yes. The Long Beach Building and Safety Department is responsible for enforcing zoning regulations, and it is illegal to carry on a business in an R-1 residential zone. A spokesman for the department said you can call 435-3435 to file a complaint, which will be written up and given to a department field man to investigate. If a zoning regulation is indeed being violated, the department will notify the offender and set a time limit for correction.

Dreamy Tune

Q. Can you tell me who sang the song "When I Grow Too Old to Dream" in some motion picture? R.B., Wilmington.

A. Jose Ferrer sang the song in the film biography of Sigmund Romberg, "Deep in My Heart." The movie was released by MGM in 1954 and starred Jose Ferrer, Merle Oberon and Helen Traubel. Romberg wrote the music for "When I Grow Too Old to Dream" and Oscar Hammerstein II wrote the words.

Seat Savers

Q. I attended the Long Beach district high school football game each week. I had to be at the stadium about two hours before game time in order to get a good seat, as many women saved rows of seats for their late-arriving friends and relatives. What can be done to have these tickets sold on a reserved-seat basis? Whom should I contact? R.A., Lakewood.

A. Write to Larry Rossi, assistant superintendent of physical education for the Long Beach Unified School District, 701 Locust Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90813. While there is no plan at present to sell reserved seat tickets to high school games, Millikan, Lakewood and Jordan high schools have a special adult booster section for which tickets can be bought in advance. This section usually is located on the 50-yard line directly behind the student seating section, and is reserved for the school's adult fans at no extra cost.

Blinking Blue Eye

Q. Every night about 10 p.m. my television screen goes completely black for about 30 seconds. I can't figure out what is wrong, and wonder if you could give me a reason for this peculiar loss of power. R.J.S., Long Beach.

A. You will soon be contacted by a communications specialist from Southern California Edison Co. who will check your equipment and wiring to see if he can find the source of your power problem. In response to a call from ACTION LINE, Edison measured the current coming into your home for 48 hours, and spokesmen said the reading from the recording volt meter showed a "constant and beautiful" level of power at 121 volts. He noted that many times interferences with television and radio sets can come from simple sources like power tools or heating pads.

Daring Young Man

Q. Where was Alfredo Codona, the circus aerialist, born? N.N., Long Beach.

A. Alfredo Codona, onetime star of the Flying Codonas, was born in Mexico City in 1896 and committed suicide in Long Beach in 1937. From the time he was 4 years old, Codona was trained to be a circus performer. He became a superb aerialist and originated the triple somersault in midair. He was the only trapeze performer to do the stunt blindfolded. In 1929, Codona married gymnast Lillian Lietzel. Two years later, she was killed in a fall while performing. In 1932, the Flying Codonas Alfredo, his brother Lalo and Vera Bruce — performed at the opening of the Long Beach Municipal Auditorium. Codona later married Vera Bruce. In 1934, he suffered a shoulder injury while doing his triple somersault and was never able to star again on the trapeze. His marriage ended in a Long Beach divorce court. In July 1937 Alfredo met Vera in attorney James E. Pawson's office to discuss the division of property. Suddenly Alfredo pulled out a gun, shot Vera five times and then killed himself. Vera died the next day at Seaside Hospital.

Star Struck

Q. Are there stores which carry Eastern Star gift items in the Long Beach area. I am particularly interested in finding stationery, dishes and jewelry. Mrs. M. E., Long Beach.

A. Jewelry with the Eastern Star emblem can be found at Dean Credit Jewelers, 6518 E. Spring St., and at Craft's Jewelers, 144 Long Beach Blvd. James Craft, owner of Craft's Jewelers, said he could obtain dishes with the emblem for you on special order. Eastern Star stationery can be ordered from The Royal Press, 535 Locust St. in Downey. Eastern Star gifts can be purchased from Clark's Fraternal Supply Co., 11018 S. Downey Ave.

A virus-illment epidemic, believed to be the Hong Kong flu, tightened its grip on Long Beach Friday.

Pupil absences increased. Schools ran out of teachers. Workers stayed off the job in many industries in numbers twice that of normal.

Absences in Long Beach schools passed the 9,000 mark, in contrast with 7,500 who missed classes Thursday, officials of the Long Beach Unified School District reported. (Total district enrollment, kindergarten through 12th grade, is 73,000.)

THE ABSENTEE rate for teachers was the highest of the year—240 of a roster of 3,000. The substitute-teacher list was exhausted—many of these teachers had the flu, too—and administrative personnel filled in.

A county health official estimated 350,000 residents of Los Angeles County are now ailing.

Seventy Los Angeles schools had absences Friday in excess of normal.

DR. ICHIRO KANEI, head of the acute communicable disease control division of the Los Angeles County Health Department, said it's possible that up to 40 per cent of the county's 7.25 million inhabitants may become ill at one time when the epidemic reaches its peak.

Health officials say the

Better Than Even Odds It Will Rain

Don't wash your car citizens, because if U.S. Weather Bureau predictions prove true, a lot of free water is going to start falling from the sky today.

Weathermen, gazing at their crystal ball during Friday's celebration of the last Friday the 13th this year, said Long Beach skies will be generally cloudy with a 60 per cent chance of rain today, and a 70 per cent possibility of precipitation by tonight.

Rain is expected to blanket the Southland, and skiers were cheering after forecasters said mountain snowlines have fallen to about 6,000 feet.

Daytime temperature outlook this weekend called for coastal areas to register highs in the 60s, mountain sections were expected to be in the low 50s, and deserts in the 60s.

ISAIAH WAS POLITICIAN OF PULPIT

He never hesitated to bring politics into the pulpit.

U.S. Rules on Cable, Pay TV

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Communications Commission moved Friday to make a greater variety of programs available to the television viewer by authorizing the start of Pay-TV and proposing the expansion of cable television into the nation's 100 largest cities.

It authorized the start of Pay-TV broadcasting by June 12, 1969, in any community already served by four conventional TV stations. Subscribers would pay a monthly fee to see first-run movies, major sports events and other entertainment.

The FCC also proposed rules covering the multi-million-dollar Community Antenna Television (CATV) industry. The rules would allow CATV to import distant TV signals into big cities if they can get permission from the stations that originate the signals.

BUT in another step designed to put a greater variety of programming within reach of the public, the FCC proposed that all but the smallest CATV systems be required to originate some programming on their own as well as lifting and carrying the signals of free television.

"We are suggesting they (CATV systems) get into the program market," said Rosel H. Hyde, FCC chairman. "Our action will in effect put CATV into the marketplace for programs."

"We feel it is unfair for CATV distributors to compete with TV broadcasters who must get their programs into the market" without also having to originate some programs," Hyde said.

THE nation's 2,000 to 3,000 CATV systems began as a means of carrying clear television signals by cable and microwave to rural and remote mountainous areas, where a home antenna would normally pick up a "snowy" picture, if any at all. The subscriber pays a fee to have his set hooked into the cable.

Since 1950 CATV has expanded into large cities, where TV reception sometimes is blocked by tall buildings.

The rules regarding Pay-TV and the proposed regulations regarding CATV were long awaited by the broadcast communications industry.

POISON GREETINGS BY INNOCENT TOTS

LANSING, Mich. (UPI) — State police said Friday a Lansing nursery class was found to be using deadly poisonous jequirity beans for Christmas card decorations.

The tiny beans are so toxic that swallowing one can cause death, Sgt. William Cram said.

A Michigan State University botanist confirmed that the nursery class beans were poisonous, Cram said. Search efforts were under way to locate all the beans.

Cram said the teacher of the 15 pre-school children said she bought the beans, bright red with a black tip, at a local market about two years ago. The youngsters were using them as decorative lights on their cards.

Sears Roebuck and Co. has been recalling brooches decorated with jequirity beans. A spokesman for the Japanese Chatani Jewelry Co., which sent the jewelry to American retail stores, said the beans may have come from either the Philippines or Brazil.

Demonstrator and Pro-Administration Student Come to Grips

'Confront Agitators' —Reagan

SANTA MONICA (AP) — Gov. Reagan, saying agitators are moving onto high school campuses, urged administrators Friday to "draw the line and have the confrontation now with no appeasement."

Schools should make it clear to students, he said, that "they are there to learn, and if they are unwilling to come in and abide by the rules... let them get out and go someplace else."

Reagan made the remarks after being asked at an impromptu news conference about student demonstrations at the predominantly Negro Fremont High School in Los Angeles.

AGITATORS, he said, believe they create "more anarchy and chaos if they can get to the younger people."

The governor criticized teachers who advise agitators, saying they have "forfeited their right to be teachers" when they sponsor or support "illegal activities, disruption and chaos."

Reagan was here for homecoming ceremonies for Apollo 7 astronaut Walter Cunningham.

Cunningham got a hero's homecoming and urged students not to waste time "finding out what you can protest."

"If students were smart enough to run the universities they wouldn't be going to school,"

32 Agents Resign in N.Y. Dope Probe

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Atty. Gen. Ramsey Clark disclosed Friday night that 32 federal narcotics agents have resigned in the wake of an investigation of agents who peddled some of the drugs they had seized as contraband.

Clark said more resignations were expected. He said a 16-month investigation produced evidence of "significant corruption during the past decade among former employees of the New York office of the Bureau of Narcotics."

In addition to selling drugs seized as contraband, a spokesman said, some also illegally used other contraband — such as seized cars — and were engaged in the illegal purchase and sale of drugs.

L.B. Youth Indicted for Evading Draft

Vacation Moved Up for Safety

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Strike-rocked San Francisco State College closed Friday for Christmas—one week early—after demonstrators threatened to involve vacationing high school students in campus protests.

Striking students shouted obscenities at Acting President S. I. Hayakawa as he announced the early closing over campus loudspeakers.

"The safety and welfare of the young people who might be attracted to the campus is a grave concern to the administration and faculty," Hayakawa said.

HIGH SCHOOLS closed for Christmas Friday. Strikers, a small minority of the 18,000 enrollment, had openly planned to beef up their demonstrations by bringing in high school students next week.

The strikers and a small group of union teachers threatened a showdown at the scheduled reopening Jan. 6.

Hayakawa said a fire Thursday night destroyed class assignment records for the spring semester, and this was another reason for the closing.

It also will give more time to set up by February a promised Department of Black Studies as demanded by the strikers.

ABOUT 500 persons, assembling in the central campus area for a rally, cheered when Hayakawa disclosed the fire damage, but booed his announcement that the library would remain open during the holidays.

They called him obscene names when he wished them a Merry Christmas, and chanted "He shut it down," then changed it to "We shut it down."

"We will come back 10 times stronger," shouted Hari Dillon, member of the Third World Liberation Front which joined in the strike called originally Nov. 6 by the Black Students Union.

THE American Federation of Teachers chapter, claiming 270 members among the faculty of 1,100, had planned to go on strike Monday. It held a short rally after Hayakawa's announcement, and the demonstrators then marched peacefully off campus.

Joseph White, Negro dean of undergraduate studies, told the rally, "I

B-52 Bombers Hammer Red Routes to Saigon

Combined News Services

SAIGON, Saturday — B-52 bombers blasted Communist supply routes between Saigon and the Cambodian border today with another 2.5 million pounds of bombs in the heaviest such raids in three weeks. Communist troops burned part of a South Vietnamese hamlet to the ground Friday and shelled a province capital in a series of attacks within 70 miles of Saigon, and U.S. infantrymen killed 15 Communists in a battle 25 miles northwest of Saigon. Four of the latest B-52 missions concentrated on a buildup of Communist forces in Tay Ninh Province northwest of Saigon and started Friday night. Tay Ninh Province is the location of several key Communist routes from Cambodia and is an area where increasing clashes have been reported following reports the Reds might try an offensive against Saigon.

Search for Peace Begins With Circles

PARIS — The U.S. and North Vietnam discussed the political implications of circles, squares and doughnuts Friday. They were edging toward compromise on a table shape — the key to the Viet Cong's status at the peace talks. At a three-hour private meeting, U.S. negotiator Cyrus R. Vance and North Vietnam's Col. Ha Van Lau exchanged diagrams for table arrangements and both came up with a circular design. The American proposal would have the doughnut shaped table split in the middle to stress what the allies regard as the two-sided nature of the conference. Col. Lau proposed a perfectly round table, designed to stress that the conference will be four-sided with the Viet Cong's NLF enjoying equal status alongside the delegations of the U.S. and North and South Vietnam.

Americans Losing Out on U.N. Jobs

UNITED NATIONS — Hundreds of qualified Americans have applied vainly to the U.N. for employment despite the fact that the quota for U.S. nationals in the world organization's secretariat is far from being filled. Raymond D. Nasher, member of the U.S. delegation, charged that Secretary General Thant had made approximately 40 per cent of staff appointments in 1968 from countries whose job quota here was more than filled. The U.N. parcels out positions on a basis of the portion of the budget assessed to each country and of equitable geographical distribution. The U.S. is assessed just under one-third of the regular U.N. budget. Of 3,381 posts listed in Thant's latest personnel report, 510 are filled by Americans.

Congress Suspended in Argentina

RIO DE JANEIRO — President Arthur Costa E. Silva Friday night suspended Congress indefinitely. A government spokesman said it was necessary "to combat revolutionary war." Several newspapers were closed and numerous arrests were reported, including former President Juscelino Kubitschek, who was taken into custody as he left a theater. Police took over the newspaper Correio da Manhã, which had been highly critical of the Brazilian government, and arrested Oswaldo Peralva, the newspaper's director.

Darkness Halts Hunt for Crash Victims

CARACAS, Venezuela — Rough seas and darkness Friday night cut short the grim recovery of bodies from a dark-infested waters where a Pan American World Airways jetliner crashed Thursday night killing all 50 persons aboard. Authorities said 20 bodies, some of them mutilated by swarms of sharks, had been recovered before operations were suspended until morning. There was no indication of what caused the big four-engined jet to plunge into the sea.

Court Rules Arlington Must Bury Communist

WASHINGTON — A U.S. court of appeals ruled Friday that the Army must permit the burial of a decorated WW II veteran in Arlington National Cemetery although he later was convicted of being a Communist working to overthrow the government. A three-judge panel noted that Robert G. Thompson, who died in 1965, served actively in the Army for nearly two years and earned his honorable discharge. Though he later became a felon, he remained an honorably discharged veteran of the Pacific campaigns. "We hold that the Army could not properly prevent burial of his remains in a national cemetery," the judges ruled. He was convicted with other top U.S. Communists of conspiring to overthrow the government by force and violence.

'Ill-Trained' Troops Must Go to War

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Army reservists trooped to the witness stand to testify they were ill trained for combat but a federal judge Friday night refused to block their transfer to Vietnam. At the end of a day-long trial, U.S. District Court Judge Robert R. Merhige rejected the request of the 91 reservists for an injunction blocking their transfer to the war zone until they were more adequately trained. Witness after witness from the 203rd Light Truck Transportation Company from Garden City, N.Y., testified the Army falsified its own records to show them "fit" for Vietnam service. Some said they had never fired a rifle but their records showed them proficient in marksmanship. Some said they never sat behind the wheel of a truck although their records showed them qualified as truck drivers.

'Cuba Power' Leader Given 10 Years

MIAMI — Dr. Orlando Bosch, baby doctor turned terrorist, was sentenced Friday to 10 years in prison for shelling a Polish freighter docked in Miami. Eight other members of Bosch's "Cuban Power" band received sentences ranging from one to six years. They were convicted of conspiring to commit acts of war against other nations by plotting to place explosives on ships of nations trading with Fidel Castro's government.

Blizzard Whips Through Midwest

Icy winds whipped snow into huge drifts in the north central part of the nation Friday. Many schools closed and highway travel slowed to a crawl. Blizzard conditions ranged through Minnesota, South and North Dakota. The heavy winds and swirling snow, coupled with icy conditions, halted some travel in the area. The intense storm that lashed the entire Midwest late Friday moved northeastward across the Upper Mississippi Valley into Canada. The blizzard knocked out telephone service in 52 communities in South Dakota alone. On Mille Lacs Lake, a resort area north of St. Paul-Minneapolis, ice broke up overnight and crawled over U.S. 169. Twenty-foot high chunks blocked roads in the area.

Apollo 8 Countdown to Begin Earlier

CAPE KENNEDY — Moonport officials revised the Apollo 8 countdown Friday and added an extra day to it to improve chances for an ontime launch of three men to the moon, Dec. 21. Under the new timetable, the preliminary portion of the final countdown will begin at 7 p.m. EST Sunday. It was to have started late Monday. Project officials were able to lengthen the count because they completed all major testing of the 363-foot Apollo 8 spacecraft Thursday and that left three days before the countdown was to start.

1,472 Miles Added to Highway System

WASHINGTON — The Transportation Department Friday allocated 1,472 miles of added mileage to the interstate highway system. The mileage will be used to fill critical links in the interstate system in 28 states. The added mileage will cost 2.4 billion. Ninety per cent of the bill will be paid by the federal government. The other 10 per cent is paid by the states.

Morse Recount Slowed by Challenges

PORTLAND, Ore. — Challenges, running up to 100 per cent of the votes cast in some precincts, slowed the recount Friday in Oregon's U.S. senatorial election and raised the possibility the result would not be known before Christmas. Sen. Wayne Morse, Democratic member of the Senate, for 24 years, asked for the recount. He lost the Nov. 5 election to Republican Robert Packwood, 38, by a margin of 3,445 votes—408,825 to 405,380.

Minnesota Wants HHH Back

Combined News Services

Vice President Humphrey Friday was offered a "shared professorship" at the University of Minnesota, his alma mater, and Macalester College, where he once taught. Humphrey's friends said he probably would accept. In Washington, Humphrey said he was considering the offer and will announce his plans in "the very near future."

He indicated he was leaning toward $30,000-a-year offer from the Minneapolis-St. Paul institutions, but added he also was considering "other educational offers." However, Minnesota sources said Humphrey will return to his home state next month and couple his college teaching there with writing and politics. It was also disclosed Friday that Humphrey has signed a contract "for one or more books" with Doubleday & Company, Inc., the New York publishing house.

JINX FAILS

Janice Marie Hutcherson, 9, was not superstitious about undergoing open heart surgery on Friday the 13th. "God will go with me into this operating room," she said. There were four separate heart defects to be corrected in the delicate surgery designed to relieve the "blue baby" condition with which the girl was born.

After four hours on the operating table, however, doctors said Friday she was in satisfactory condition and that they were "very pleased" with the way the operation had gone.

RORY KENNEDY

Mrs. Robert F. Kennedy is thinking of naming her newborn baby daughter "Rory." The name Rory is typically Irish and usually reserved for boys. But Mrs. Kennedy likes the name and feels it is reminiscent to the name of the baby's father. Friends said she felt that "Roberta" would have been too obvious.

'BEST JURY'

An Albuquerque jury Friday found Reyes Lopez, Tijerina innocent of kidnapping and two other charges stemming from the armed takeover of a New Mexico courthouse last year. The attack was allegedly carried out by followers of Tijerina who believe ancient Spanish land grants give them title to a large section of northern New Mexico.

"I think this is the best jury New Mexico has ever had," the joyful Tijerina said after the verdict was brought in. He had conducted his own defense during much of the trial and delivered an emotional, 75-minute summation earlier in the day.

UNVARNISHED

Rep. Paul Findley of Illinois proclaimed Friday his availability for chairmanship of the House Republican Conference — "Or any other openings for that matter" — because of "unvarnished personal ambition." The incumbent conference chairman, Rep. Melvin R. Laird of Wisconsin, has been named to be secretary of defense in the new Nixon administration.

HEART DEATH

Darrell Hammarley, 56, history's first double heart transplant recipient, died Friday night at the Stanford Medical Center. He had suffered a stroke Thursday and a preliminary autopsy showed he died of a brain clot. Hammarley's surgery inaugurated a new era in the still-new field of heart transplants. He received a new heart Nov. 20, but it began beating erratically and Dr. Norman Shumway removed it six hours later for a second new heart. Both donors were anonymous.

STALLED

Max Conrad, the American grandfather making his way around the world in a twin-engine plane was forced to delay his flight over the South Pole Friday because of bad weather.

POLICE HELP

San Antonio police chipped in Friday to help the widow of a slain Dallas policeman who was dunned for part of her husband's paycheck. The widow is Mrs. Floyd A. Knight, whose 23-year-old husband was shot to death by a bandit Sunday. Knight's paycheck was in his pocket when he was killed.

Later the Dallas city auditor's office asked Mrs. Knight to return $27.74, explaining that Knight lacked two days, four hours and 45 minutes of working the period covered by the check.

SOME MATERIAL TERMED TOO EXPLICIT

State Begins Sex-Education Probe

The state Board of Education began an investigation of school sex education Friday after a member said some material used in classrooms is objectionable.

"Some of it actually goes into techniques of the sex act and would seem pornographic," said

George Brown. He didn't elaborate.

Brown said he has no first-hand knowledge but has been told some sex education material is used by third and fourth graders.

The board, meeting in Los Angeles, unanimously adopted Brown's proposal for an investigation to determine whether current sex education violates the state education code and whether local districts need guidelines in teaching about sex.

Brown said he wasn't against sex education. "There is a need for family life education provided it is done in proper texts and at the proper level," he said.

The board voted to invite the Sex Education and Information Council of the United States to appear before it. Brown said the nonprofit organization appears to be the promoter of much new sex education in public schools.

Another board member,

Rev. Donn Moomaw, said the investigation would provide guidelines to districts.

"Many of these decisions rest with the local boards," he said, "and some have asked me if we had guidelines. We owe it to these boards to help them come to some conclusions."

Freeway Advisory Board Set

From Our State Bureau

SACRAMENTO — The California Highway Commission, beset continually by angry citizens protesting freeway routes, Friday established an 11-member advisory board to study present route selection procedures.

The purpose of the action, according to state Public Works Director James A. Moe and Highway Commission Chairman Ermon J. Cristina, is to assure "full participation by the public in the selection of freeway route locations."

Members of the advisory board will be selected by Moe and Cristina. The board will also be asked to look into ways to improve public involvement in freeway design procedures, Moe said.

A recent change in state law gives Moe responsibility for recommending to the highway commission a specific alignment for each highway routing, with the final decision resting with the commission. Before the new law went into effect last month, the state highway engineer made the recommendation.

Pair Held in Death of Friend

Two 18-year-olds were held Friday on suspicion of murder after a 24-year-old man fell to his death from a small cliff in Los Angeles.

James T. Arague died Thursday when he landed on his head "like a dart," witnesses said.

Police said that marijuana was found on Arague's body and that the arrested youths appeared to have been smoking it.

Pablo Tulevera and Eduardo Morales, were booked on suspicion of murder under a statute that permits such a booking when a person dies during an action suspected of being a felony.

Tulevera also fell from the cliff and was hospitalized in serious condition. Morales fell to a ledge and was rescued by Los Angeles firemen. All are from Los Angeles.

Woman Robs Bank

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman wearing a red wig robbed a south Los Angeles bank of $928 Friday. Police said she got the money after handing a teller a note saying, "If you cause any trouble your family will get hurt."

'U.S. Should Finance Sirhan Trial'—Hahn

Supervisor Kenneth Hahn suggested Friday that Congress reimburse Los Angeles County for costs associated with the trial of Sirhan Sirhan, accused assassin of New York Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

The supervisor said it is unfair for the county's property taxpayers to have to bear the full cost of the trial and custody of Sirhan. "Costs have already exceeded $286,000," said

Named in Probe, Official Resigns High RTD Post

One of the key figures in the recent inquiry into irregularities of operations of the Southern California Rapid Transit district unexpectedly announced his resignation Friday.

Raymond W. Gareau, 42, manager of operations for the RTD, told RTD General Manager Samuel B. Nelson he was leaving his $25,000-a-year post as of today.

Gareau said he was quitting to take an executive position with the transportation industry in the East.

When he came to the RTD in January 1967 Gareau had been vice president of the Eastern Massachusetts Railway.

The recent district attorney's investigation of RTD operations disclosed that Gareau was hired by the district without a check of his background.

Gareau was hired as controller at $23,000 a year — a post created for him by the RTD on recommendation of General Manager Dale W. Barratt, who was general manager at the time.

The appointment allegedly was made after a single interview with no check of references or previous employers to determine whether Gareau was qualified for the post.

The inquiry revealed Gareau had been involved in a Philadelphia scandal which resulted in a $2 million out-of-court settlement. Gareau was later appointed to the No. 2 job in the RTD, manager of operations.

Barratt and Gareau apparently had been associated in private business 10 years. They both figured in two RTD transactions involving the sale of 107 surplus trolleys and 50 surplus diesel buses.

1 Bus Fare Urged for All of L.A.

A one-fare zone for buses operating in metropolitan Los Angeles was urged Friday by Supervisor Kenneth Hahn.

Hahn said he has asked the Southern California Rapid Transit District to put in the new system to "stimulate passenger use" of RTD.

The supervisor said that the single fare would also provide faster and more convenient service.

At present, a passenger pays 30 cents when he steps on an RTD bus plus 5 cents if he plans for transfer. Should he be going more than a certain distance he then pays an extra 8 cents for each fare zone.

"At fare zone stops, the driver must walk through the bus collecting fares," Hahn said. "This holds up traffic as well as delaying passengers."

Hahn said an added advantage of the system was that bus riders could be required to pay exact fares—thus eliminating the need for drivers to carry large sums of money and run the risk of hold-ups.

Retiring AF Chief Named to Presidency of Caltech

PASADENA (AP) — Dr. Harold Brown, retiring secretary of the Air Force, was named Friday to succeed Dr. Lee A. DuBridge as president of California Institute of Technology.

The announcement was made by Dr. Arnold O. Beckman, chairman of the board of trustees. DuBridge is leaving Caltech to become President-elect Nixon's science advisor.

Brown, 41, was chosen after an 18-month study of potential prospects said Beckman. When Brown will take over the job hasn't been determined.

Brown has spent eight years in the Department of Defense. Before that, he was a physician for 10 years on the staff of the Radiation Laboratory at the University of California at Berkeley.

He was appointed director of defense research and engineering by President Kennedy in 1961. He remained in that position until 1965 when President Johnson appointed him Secretary of the Air Force.

Brown was graduated from Columbia University in 1945 and four years later earned a Ph. D. from Columbia in physics. He was a research scientist there from 1945 until 1950, when he went to Berkeley.

In 1960, he was named director of the University of California's Livermore Laboratory, which emphasized nuclear weapons research and controlled thermonuclear reactions.

He was senior science adviser to the conference for discontinuance of nuclear tests and to the U. S. delegation for the conference on detection of nuclear tests in 1958.

Brown is a member of the National Academy of Engineering, American Physical Society, Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Chi. He and his wife Colene have two daughters, Deborah and Ellen.

Carson Bids for County Hiring Aid

From Our L.A. Bureau

A resolution from Carson asking the county to handle municipal personnel services will come before the Board of Supervisors Tuesday for a vote.

The county's chief administrative officer, L. S. Hollinger, recommends approval.

Under the terms of the proposed contract, the county would handle all recruiting, interviewing and testing of prospective employees. The city then would pay the cost of these services.

"The county now provides personnel services under similar contracts to 20 cities.

Unrest Hits Second L.A. High School; U.S. Flag Burned

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Violence erupted Friday at a second Los Angeles high school, as a tense calm prevailed at Fremont High School, which has been racked by three days of violence.

About 300 students at Crenshaw High School, a predominantly Negro school several miles west of Fremont, tore down the American flag and burned it in an after school demonstration.

The incident apparently was led by members of the Black Students Union and was triggered by the trouble at Fremont, where violence broke out earlier this week when four members of the BSU were suspended for allegedly disrupting a faculty meeting and shouting obscenities.

Members of the association of classroom teachers of Los Angeles notified Fremont principal Robert Malcolm they would seek 100 signatures of teachers at the predominantly Negro Watts area school. They said it the petition drive was successful they would ask for a superior court injunction to shut down the school until its problems can be solved.

A few minor fistfights broke out on the Fremont campus Friday, but no arrests were made, and police officials said the situation was tense but calm. A precautionary tactical alert was called.

Students Batter College

SAN MATEO (AP)—Student dissidents raced across the campus of the College of San Mateo Friday smashing doors, windows and television cameras with rocks and tire irons until police drove them away.

Eleven persons, including two faculty members, were injured in the second day of violence on the junior college campus.

The outbreak followed a rally by the Third World Liberation Front, representing non-Negro minority students. The organization had called for a one-day strike Friday to support striking students at nearby San Francisco State College.

MANY STUDENTS not participating in the violence cheered as helmeted police chased groups of dissident students from building to building.

At the Horticulture Building on the edge of the campus, police cornered dissidents, massing in front. The dissidents ran through the building, out the back door and jumped into cars. They formed a caravan and headed for Redwood City.

About 100 students, primarily Negroes, presented a list of demands to Clyde Curry, deputy superintendent of schools. Then they quietly dispersed.

AFTER THE outbreak, some classes continued but others were canceled.

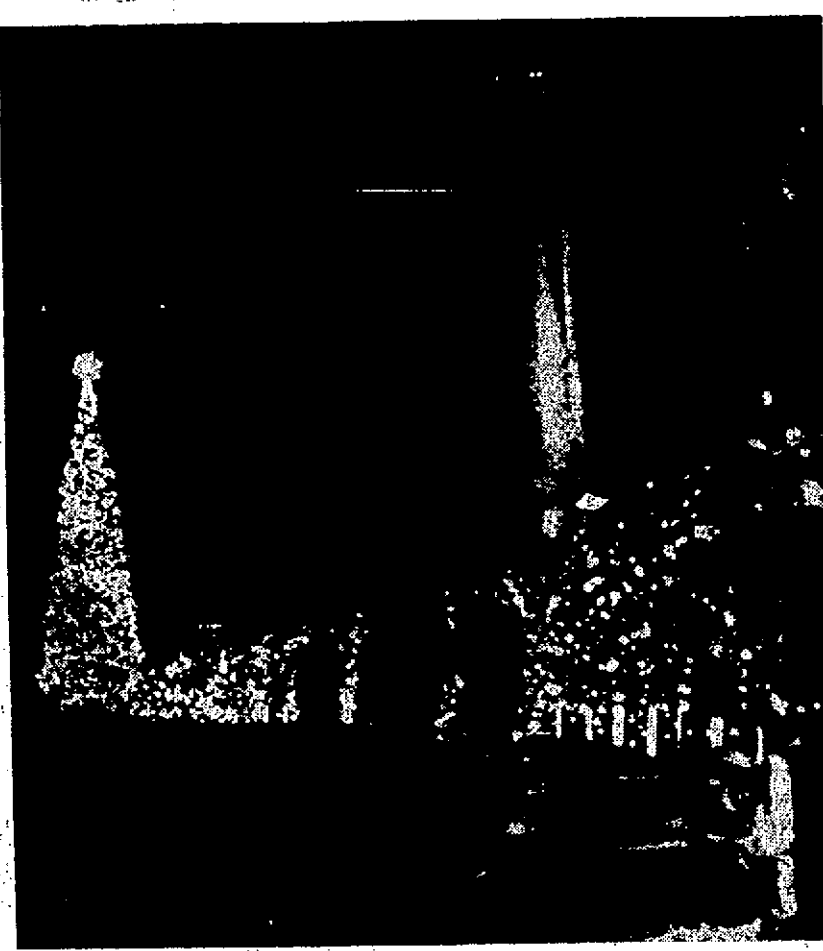

A medical clinic set up on campus by a county agency reported treating eight persons, including two faculty members, for cuts and bruises. Three other persons were taken from campus by ambulance.

During the 20-minute rampage, five buildings on the campus were damaged. Third World leaders said as soon as one or two persons started smashing windows, others joined in.

Trustees' Head Backs Decision by Hayakawa

CHICO (UPI)—Theodore H. Meriam, president of the State College Board of Trustees, Friday endorsed S. I. Hayakawa's decision to close San Francisco State College a week early.

Meriam said Hayakawa informed members of the board before announcing the closure. Meriam said some trustees were not pleased by the action but a consensus backed Hayakawa.

Flu in Long Beach

epidemic is just beginning in Southern California.

Among Long Beach schools, hardest hit Friday was Long Beach Polytechnic Senior High School, with 541 absent out of an enrollment of 2,869. This was 145 more than were absent the previous day.

INCREASES also were reported at Hoover Junior High, from 118 on Thursday to 131 Friday of an enrollment of 1,156 and at Garfield Elementary, from 162 Thursday to 201 Friday of a 1,730 enrollment. With the exception of Poly, high school absentee rates ranged around 14 per cent while junior highs and elementary schools with flu problems averaged 12 per cent.

Normal school absenteeism is estimated at 5 to 8 per cent.

OTHER ABSENTEE reports included: Jordan High, 338 of 2,036 enrollment (14 per cent); Lakewood High, 532 of 3,839 (14 per cent); and Wilson High, 383 of 2,978 (12 per cent).

Among junior high schools: Stephens, 153 of 1,224 (12 per cent); Marshall, 167 of 1,332 (12 per cent); Hoover, 131 of 1,156 (11 per cent); Hughes, 127 of 1,116 (11 per cent); Rogers, 70 of 769 (9 per cent); and Stanford, 139 of 1,540 (9 per cent).

Elementary school absentee reports included: Barton, 145 of 1,036 (14 per cent); Tinsler, 154 of 1,212 (12 per cent); Garfield, 201 of 1,730 (12 per cent); Harte, 80 of 692 (11 per cent); Addams, 111 of 935 (11 per cent); Bixby, 58 of 598 (10 per cent); Burbank, 59 of 588 (10 per cent).

THE LONG BEACH Post Office reported an absence rate of 6 per cent, considered twice that of normal, but David Selcer, postmaster, said operations have not been handicapped.

"We had only 24 carriers absent Friday, compared to 34 on Thursday," Selcer said. Normally about 18 carriers are absent daily.

One station alone had seven employees absent on Thursday, Selcer disclosed. Post office officials were holding their breath for the holiday peak period for outgoing mail will be next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Selcer said. Peak for volume of incoming mail is expected later next week.

DR. I. D. LITWACK, Long Beach health officer, said absences at Douglas Aircraft had reached 6 per cent — "double the normal experience" for the firm.

The rate was 4.5 for Long Beach city employees, also double the normal rate.

Dr. Litwack speculated the epidemic will reach its peak here in mid-January. Although the causative virus has not yet been identified, health officials believe most of the current infections are the new Hong Kong flu.

THE HEALTH OFFICER urged flu victims to see their personal physicians and to avoid self-medication.

"I advise against self-diagnosis and treatment," he said.

He said that although influenza itself is a disease,

ATLANTA (UPI)—Health officials predicted a three-month siege Friday and said the worst is still to come in the current, nationwide outbreak of influenza and respiratory diseases which already has claimed 700 lives. "It appears we're at the beginning of a national epidemic—not at the peak of it," a spokesman for the National Communicable Disease Center declared.

case of short duration, "convalescence is of long duration." "The disease leaves one quite debilitated, and thus proper convalescence is important," he said. He advised against returning to work or to school too soon.

PERSONS WHO contract the flu are left "quite susceptible" to other infections, he said. Feared most, he said, is the possible complication of pneumonia.

For those who have not yet had the ailment, Dr. Litwack advised attempts to maintain the body's resistance against disease.

"Get plenty of rest, good food and avoid crowds if possible," he urged.

Dr. Litwack said the City Health Department received a number of phone calls Friday from flu victims wanting vaccine.

"Vaccine is a preventive agent, not a treatment," he said. "It is of no value once you have the flu."

MEANWHILE, the Orange County Health Department reported there have been no pronounced outbreaks of influenza in Orange County.

First cases of the new-type flu became evident in Hong Kong July 13.

First known case in California occurred July 27. The victim was a Redwood City employee of a commercial airline.

Next, a sporadic outbreak occurred at the Marine Corps Depot in San Diego. All told, 21 Marine sergeants became ill. Of the 21, at least 15 were returnees from Vietnam who had stopped off in Hong Kong en route to the United States.

First major outbreak in California occurred among high school students in Needles. About 500 were afflicted.

Dr. Gerald A. Heildbreder, Los Angeles County health officer, said that by the first week in December, three junior high students and an aircraft worker in Los Angeles were found to have the Hong Kong flu.

The County Health Department worked closely with the infectious disease laboratory of the University of Southern California to isolate and identify the Hong Kong flu virus.

Hollywood Palace Hit by Fire

Flames raced through the deserted Hollywood Palace Friday night and caused $85,000 worth of damage.

Six fire units under Division Commander George Moore put out the fire, which had been held in check by sprinklers.

The Fire Department said faulty electrical equipment may have started the blaze among scenery sets on the stage of the theater. Firemen doused the flames after a 10-minute battle.

FLIGHTS SUPPORT WAR, BUT S. Viets Get $1.3 Million Taxing U.S. Air Service

By BUCK LANIER
Military Editor

South Vietnam's government airline has pocketed nearly $1.3 million in American tax money as the price for letting chartered U.S. planes fly war-support missions.

Such extraordinarily high fees are not uncommon in the costly Southeast Asian war, a General Accounting Office official here says.

The airline, Air Vietnam, is owned 80 per cent by South Vietnam and 20 per cent by French interests.

It ferries men and equipment around the country for the giant RMK-BRJ construction combine, under contract to build military facilities.

In 1965, the General Accounting official says, RMK-BRJ complained after Air Vietnam delayed some flights and canceled others, refused to fly to some parts of the country and objected to some equipment and its markings.

A request by the construction company to find new air services by using two planes chartered from Continental Air Services, a subsidiary of Continental Airlines, was turned down by South Vietnam.

RMK-BRJ then made an ex-officio agreement for a supposedly joint venture with Continental and Air Vietnam with 15 per cent of all payments for Continental to be paid to Air Vietnam instead.

For this, Air Vietnam performed minor services only — issuing permits, tower clearances and aircraft identification codes.

For those services, Air Vietnam received $1,262,000 in three years — for flights in direct support of the South Vietnamese government.

Pacific Architects and Engineers, Inc., another U.S. contractor, was faced with the same roadblock when it bought two Caribou transport planes in 1967 for $1.4 million at U.S. expense.

Seeks Law to Exclude Malcontents Successor List Grows

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—A Republican legislator Friday called for creation of a bipartisan legislative committee to redefine "academic freedom" to exclude campus malcontents.

Assemblyman Eugene Chapple of Cool, said the committee should make sure academic freedom cannot be used as an excuse for mob violence. Chapple also said the National Guard should be used, if necessary, to keep order at the colleges.

He said campus authorities should never negotiate with student activists.

"We must begin to make clear what this elusive term, 'academic freedom' really means," Chapple said. "The future of higher education is seriously threatened. Either we re-establish sanity on campus and in classroom or an outraged public will reshape higher education to suit its will to the detriment of present and future generations."

The planes were flown to Thailand and remained there a year before South Vietnam let them enter the country and begin operations.

PA&E, meanwhile, had to continue to lease two old C-47 transports from Air Vietnam for what it considered inadequate service. If the Caribous had been used, $300,000 in tax money would have been saved, the official says.

Pronounced Dead, Alive a Week Later

DENVER (AP)—A week after she was pronounced dead by a resident physician — and was prepared for a postmortem operation — Mrs. Goldie Marie Rheams, 71, is alive, but in a coma.

The woman was pronounced dead last Friday at 3:15 p.m., according to the chief administrator at Denver General Hospital, Dr. David Cowen. Friends and relatives had been notified of her "death," preliminary funeral arrangements had been made, and a funeral notice was inserted in two newspapers.

But at 4 p.m. last Friday, doctors noticed Mrs. Rheams' respiration and heartbeat were functioning without stimulation, and she was breathing normally about one hour after she had been pronounced dead.

SAID Dr. Cowen: "It was a series of mistakes, but all understandable."

He said the woman has remained in a coma since the incident, and may respond to painful stimulation, but for practical purposes, "the original pronouncement that she was dead is correct. There's no telling how long she will hold on."

"This is one of those exceedingly unfortunate things that does happen rarely," Dr. Cowen said. Mrs. Rheams had entered the hospital with a broken hip suffered when she fell down some stairs. While in traction at the hospital, her condition slowly failed until she went into a coma the first week in December.

By Dec. 5, Mrs. Rheams' condition was poor enough, Dr. Cowen said, that the hospital requested permission for the removal of lymphocytes from her body after death. A sister, Mrs. Ora B. Bishop, of San Bernardino, Calif., gave permission.

AFTER the "death," a postmortem operation was scheduled.

Dr. Cowen said Mrs. Rheams was unable to maintain respiration of blood pressure, and Dr. James Styner pronounced her dead. There was no sign of consciousness, he said.

From that point, the doctor said, normal procedure followed in deaths was altered because of the proposed organ removal. She was given a heart stimulant to keep the body in good shape for removal of the lymphocytes, liquids in a human spleen which may be removed and injected into horses to produce spleen transplant serum.

FLU HITS FROM COAST TO COUGHING COAST

Associated Press

It starts with sniffles and sneezes, fatigue and fever. It's the new Hong Kong flu, or in many cases the old-fashioned variety. An epidemic of the disease has cut across the nation from coast to coast, hitting Americans in remarkable numbers.

atory disease have been reported in 30 states, with Hong Kong flu confirmed in 14 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

The bug has closed schools in more than a dozen states from Washington on the Pacific to the neighborhood coast of Maine. Strangely, it has hit mostly teachers and other students. Elementary school-children have fared better.

DR. I. D. LITWACK, Long Beach health officer, said absences at Douglas Aircraft had reached 6 per cent — "double the normal experience" for the firm.

Hands in the News on American Continents

ON BOTH AMERICAN CONTINENTS, hands punctuated events in the news Thursday. At left, Rep. Melvin R. Peace in '69 Hope of Laird

WASHINGTON (AP)—Melvin R. Laird, the Nixon administration's secretary of defense, voiced hope Friday the war in Vietnam can be ended by late next year.

"I hope that by the time we get to preparation of the first budget we can end the war in Vietnam," Laird told newsmen at his first Pentagon news conference.

Laird, veteran Wisconsin Republican congressman, did not pinpoint a time, but his reference to preparation of the first Nixon administration budget made it plain he was referring to late next year.

Laird met reporters following a two-hour conference with the man he will succeed on Jan. 20, Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford.

Herbert Klein, the Nixon administration's director of communications, said at the outset that Laird would not be able to discuss programs "and specific changes in the department" during the meeting with reporters.

Laird followed those guidelines and spoke only in generalities.

Among other things, he refused to comment on whether he still feels, as the Republicans charged during the presidential campaign, that the United States is facing a grave security gap in relation to Russia because of a lag in new strategic weaponry.

HE SAID he will visit Vietnam but "I do not plan to make such a visit until I am confirmed as secretary of defense."

Such a trip at this time would "not be meaningful," Laird said.

Laird, long an advocate of U.S. superiority in arms, pledged that "I will do everything I can to see that the security of the United States is protected at all times and that our nation remains strong."

But, in line with his stated intentions at the outset of the news conference, he shed no light on how he would go about this.

While voicing hope for an end to the Vietnam war by budget time next year, he refused to discuss any views he has on withdrawal of U.S. troops.

Asked where he stands on major defense problems, Laird replied, "I could discuss them but I won't, because the secretary of defense until the 20th of January is Secretary Clifford."

He contended that his speaking out before then could lead to "miscalculations" by other countries. He did not elaborate on this.

'MEND FENCES,' HE URGES

Scranton for U. S.-Arab Ties

NEW YORK (AP)—William W. Scranton, President-elect Nixon's special Middle East fact-finder, said Friday the United States should "mend its fences" in the Arab world.

"Improvement could be made in our relationship with the Arab nations," Scranton said, "while at the same time maintaining our deep interest in Israel."

The former Pennsylvania governor offered his recommendations at a news conference after a long luncheon meeting with the president-elect.

It was announced later that Nixon would meet today with Moshe Dayan, Israel's defense minister.

SCRANTON was reporting to Nixon on his recent tour to five Arab nations and to Israel. In the course of his trip, Scranton, after crossing the Allenby Bridge from Jordan back into Israel, said the United States should maintain a "more even-handed" policy in that part of the world.

The statement upset portions of the Jewish community in this country, and Scranton said Friday that he wanted to explain what he meant.

Israel's foreign minister sees no immediate danger of war. Page A-9.

He then, in effect, repeated that recommendation.

In order to offset the efforts being made in the Middle East by the Soviet Union, Scranton said, it is important for the United States not to lose any friends in the area, Jewish or Arab. Scranton said he thought the United States could have an influence "to a degree" upon the Arab nations.

HE SAID he thought the Arab world could live side by side with a "non-expansive" Israel. "I don't think," he said, "the Arab world is totally committed to the eradication of the state of Israel."

The former governor said the United States has been hurt in its relations with the Arab nations more by what it has said than by what it has done.

He cited the abstention on the United Nations resolution by Pakistan on Israel and the announcement of negotiations to sell phantom jets to Israel. The Arab nations, he said, are convinced that the only interest the United States has in the Middle East is in Israel. Arab leaders said they were "quite upset" by statements made during the political campaign by both Nixon and Democrat Hubert H. Humphrey in support of Israel.

SCRANTON said the Arabs entertained the "simplistic and naive" notion that Israel would bend to the will of the United States if the United States simply applied some pressure.

Another visitor to the President-elect Friday was Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., who was believed at one point to be Nixon's choice to head the Defense Department.

Jackson declined to comment on this, but said that the defense secretary designate, Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., is "extremely well qualified to run the Pentagon."

Jackson told newsmen he and Nixon agreed that the top priority problem in the area of defense is to "protect the American nuclear deterrent."

THE SENATOR said he urged an increase over the current arsenal of 41 Polaris submarines and 1,054 intercontinental ballistic missiles. Nixon gave no specific response to this, he said.

Jackson said he was urging upon the United States "the art of doing two things at once: maintain a strong military posture and at the same time keep talking to the Soviets."

Asked if a "security gap" exists between this nation and the Soviet Union, Jackson replied: "No. There's no such thing as a security gap at this time, but obviously there's a real threat to the nuclear deterrent."

RONALD L. ZIEGLER, Nixon's press spokesman, announced that the president-elect will spend the Christmas and New Year holidays in Key Biscayne, Fla. He planned to leave New York Dec. 23.

Before seeing Scranton, Nixon met with leaders of the Urban Coalition, John W. Gardner, former secretary of health, education and welfare and leader of the coalition, said afterward that Nixon was pledged the cooperation of the group in dealing with urban problems.

Gardner described Nixon as "keenly aware" of the urgency of dealing with the problems of cities.

TREASURY SECRETARIES TO HUDDLE

CHICAGO (AP)—David M. Kennedy, President-elect Nixon's nominee for secretary of the treasury, said Friday he will meet next week with Treasury Secretary Henry H. Fowler for a briefing on the international monetary situation.

Kennedy, 63, held a news conference in the board room of the Continental Illinois National Bank, Kennedy is chairman of the bank, a post he said he will not relinquish until the Senate confirms him as secretary.

"My first task is to take a look at the budget President Johnson will present and to work with the present cabinet," Kennedy said. "Second is the international situation and I will meet next week with Secretary Fowler to discuss that."

Greed Traps Gunmen Second Time Around

FORT WORTH, Tex. (UPI)—Greed and bad luck were the undoing of two gunmen of Friday the 13th.

Bad luck started when a large check was cashed at the Pacific Finance Co. 15 minutes before the gunmen entered. There was only $200 in the till.

They took that and left but got greedy and returned to take billfolds and purses from employees.

Police arrived before they could make their second getaway, disarmed the unidentified gunmen and took them to jail.

Laird Argued Against Post

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Rep. Melvin R. Laird said Friday he argued with Richard M. Nixon for three weeks to appoint Democratic Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington as Defense Secretary, but "it did not work out that way."

"I did not seek the office of Secretary of Defense," said Laird, the Wisconsin Republican who got the job. "I was asked to serve... I was not pushing my own candidacy."

A police spokesman said the Santas were arrested on charges of disturbing the peace.

Union Head Warns of Airline, Railroad Strikes Next Year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Labor negotiations covering 135,000 railroad workers and 40,000 airline mechanics could spark transportation strikes early in 1969, a union president says.

"That possibility is looming on the horizon," according to P. L. (Roy) Siemiller, president of the AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists.

Siemiller's machinists staged a six-week strike that grounded five major airlines in 1966, and his union and several others representing railroad shop craft workers tied up the railroads for two days in the first nationwide rail strike in 20 years in 1967.

The deadline for both is Dec. 31, but delaying procedures under the National Railway Labor Act could postpone any strike threat for several months. Airlines are also covered by the act.

Siemiller and the union's vice president in charge of transportation, William P. Sinpisinger, told reporters they will challenge the law in federal court if settlements are dragged out too long.

The law provides for a total of 90 days in delaying periods, but includes a provision that the National Mediation Board can postpone strike action even longer.

Siemiller said the union is demanding 6 per cent interest on any retroactive pay resulting from delayed settlements.

The union hopes to avoid the intervention of Congress in either dispute and abandoned its joint negotiations with the five major airlines that resulted in the 1966 strike.

"We decided this year not to tie up an industry, but instead to try them one at a time," Siemiller said. United Airlines is the first target.

Geritol's TV Ads Banned

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission ruled Friday that Geritol's TV ads violate its 1967 order to stop misrepresenting the drug as effective for "tired" people.

The commission found to the contrary that current Geritol commercials "in many instances have so forcefully left the viewer with the overall impression that Geritol is a generally effective remedy for tiredness that they are no less objectionable than the commercials denounced" in the original order.

The J. B. Williams Co., manufacturer of the drug preparation, and its advertising division, Parkson Advertising Agency Inc., both of New York City, were advised to discontinue immediately the broadcast of any of the television commercials.

The manufacturer and its advertising agency were directed to file with the FTC by next Jan. 31 a report of compliance showing that such commercials are no longer being broadcast and that they are in full compliance with the Nov. 24, 1967, order to cease and desist such advertising.

Sees Money Big Issue for New Science Chief

By HAROLD SCHMECK
New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Finding the money to keep American science and technology healthy may be the central problem the next presidential science adviser may face, his predecessor says.

"The central problem is preserving the vitality, the creativity and the entrepreneurial surge of the establishment," said Dr. Donald F. Hornig, speaking of science in general. He was named by President Kennedy only a few weeks before the assassination and has served during the entire Johnson administration.

"The money becomes 10 times as acute when money is tight," Hornig said in an interview.

MONEY HAS been tight in the past few years, and there is no sign of improvement for the near future. Inevitably, Dr. Lee A. DuBridge, Caltech president who has been named as chief science adviser to President-elect Richard M. Nixon, will face many problems in setting priorities and stretching resources.

Nixon has made several statements in favor of increased federal spending for all types of research. A task for the next science adviser will be to keep that commitment intact when the budgetary going gets really rough, Hornig said.

One of America's great strengths, Hornig said, is the recognition that science, like economics, is a part of everything.

DURING HIS four years as director of the Office of Science and Technology, Hornig said, he has had dealings with virtually every major department and agency of the federal government.

In its forthcoming policy decisions, the new administration must set a course for the space program after the manned landing on the moon scheduled for next year. It must decide also on how to improve the nation's health care and deal with environmental pollution.

DuBridge also faces the technological problems related to keeping the world free of nuclear war. Hornig declared.

He said he thinks the next administration ought to face up to the question of what science and technology can contribute to solving the nation's big social problems — the manifold problems of the cities, for example.

THE POSSIBILITIES he noted in this realm ranged from better understanding of what a city really is — and what it ought to be — to the possible impact of technology in reducing the cost of housing.

FALL RIVER, Mass. (AP) — The government decided Friday that the heavy artillery aboard the memorial battleship USS Massachusetts does not have to be registered under the new firearms law.

A U.S. Treasury Department spokesman in New York said a loophole in the gun law exempts from registration "weapons decided by the secretary of the treasury as not likely operable."

The spokesman said it was ruled that the nine 16-inch guns, 20 five-inch and assorted antiaircraft guns could not be fired without a major overhaul at a shipyard.

This concluded a week which saw a Treasury agent inspect the vessel to attempt to classify the weapons.

The threat of confiscation had prompted the 100-man Colonial Navy, a group of Revolutionary War buffs, to promise that "The T-men will never take these guns away from us... we have the strength of ten because our hearts are pure... we are worth 1,000 T-men."

Bone-Cancer Sleuths Find Strong Evidence of a Virus

New York Times Service

WASHINGTON — Scientists at the National Cancer Institute have found strong evidence that an unknown virus is closely associated with human bone cancer.

Their report, published Friday, said it has not been determined whether this suspected virus is an "incidental passenger" in the cancer tissue or a factor in the cause of the cancer. The scientists said further research should be done to identify the virus as a first step in answering that question.

Evidence strongly suggesting infection with the same type of virus was found in four patients with osteosarcoma, the most common form of human bone cancer, in members of their immediate families and in several close associates of one patient.

The scientists found these persons all had antibodies that reacted specifically against the same substance found in the cancer tissues. The circumstances of the study strongly suggested that these antibodies were directed against some infectious agent, still undiscovered, presumably a virus.

Marijuana Held Mild Intoxicant by Doctors

BOSTON (UPI) — Marijuana is a relatively mild intoxicant, Boston University Medical Center researchers said Friday in reporting what they believed was the first controlled attempt to investigate its effects.

In an article published in the magazine "Science," the research team said the drug has "minor, real short-lived effects."

The three investigators, working under the division of psychiatry in the university's behavioral pharmacology laboratory, tested marijuana on two groups of men 21 to 26, chronic users and nonusers, last spring.

THE NINE nonusers did not get "high" but their performance on simple tests of motor coordination and clear thinking was slightly impaired, while the eight users did get high but did not suffer similar impairment of performance.

None of the marijuana effects was as profound as those produced by smoking tobacco in the same fashion as marijuana is smoked — inhaled and held for 20 seconds — by five prospective subjects. The reactions, principally dizziness, forced the five young men to be dropped from the experiment.

The researchers said they had difficulty finding men over 21 who smoked tobacco but had never tried marijuana.

The test was a "double-blind" test — that is, neither the tester nor the subject knew whether the cigarette contained marijuana or stalks of the male hemp without the active constituent of the drug.

It was believed to be the first attempt to "investigate marijuana in a formal, double-blind experiment with the appropriate controls" and the first attempt to collect basic information in the laboratory on the effect of the drug on nonusers.

THE THREE investigators — Dr. Andrew T. Weil, then a Harvard medical student, Dr. Norman E. Zinberg of Harvard and Judith M. Nelson of Boston University — said the subjects, in each of four three-hour sessions, were asked to smoke two cigarettes.

The marijuana cigarettes were hand rolled with the drug provided by the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and, made uniform with the help of chemical analysis by the U.S. Customs Laboratory at Baltimore, Md.

The report said the "puzzling phenomenon" of nonusers failing to become intoxicated might be explained by a hypothesis suggesting that a user needs to become sensitized to the drug, or by a psychological hypothesis proposing that inhibitions must first be lessened. But further investigation is necessary, it noted.

Dr. Peter H. Knapp, director of psychiatric research, told newsmen he could not say marijuana was not harmful.

Dr. Conan Kornetsky, a Boston University psychopharmacologist, said, "I've concluded that marijuana smoking is not as bad as some authorities believe, although it's still not as harmless as some young people think." He said no one should do anything that requires coordination after smoking marijuana, such as driving a car.

Safety Unit Asks Alcohol Limit Set in Drivers' Law

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The governor's Traffic Safety Conference Friday called on the Legislature to pass a "presumptive limits" law to crack down on the drinking driver.

The request was among traffic safety recommendations presented to Gov. Ronald Reagan by conference members at the conclusion of its two-day meeting. About 1,200 adults and teenagers studied traffic problems at the conference, sponsored by the governor.

Reagan told the conference Thursday he will try again next year to get legislative approval of a measure to set a .10 per cent alcohol blood limit for determining if a driver is drunk.

Similar legislation, backed by Reagan, was defeated this year on the Assembly floor.

Current law does not set a level of intoxication. A court determines whether a person who has taken a chemical test was drunk when arrested.

The conference recommendation noted the "presumptive limit" test has the endorsement of the American Bar Association, the National Safety Council and the American Medical Association.

The conference also recommended:

- Expansion of the present driver education system to include training in vehicle operation under emergency situations such as tire blow-outs at high speed, loss of brakes and stuck accelerators.
- Enlargement of the research programs in accident prevention being conducted by the Highway Patrol and UCLA.
- Extension to professional accident research investigators the authority now possessed by investigators of the Federal Aviation Association to eliminate legal restrictions on studying accidents.
- Enactment of legislation permitting traffic courts to handle juvenile traffic violations.
- Increase of the driver's license fee to provide more funds for improving driver licensing procedures.

Yield Tax Urged on Oil Lands

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An economics professor Friday urged the State Advisory Commission on Tax Reform to make major changes in the present system of taxing oil, timber and agricultural lands.

Guenther M. Conradus of San Jose State College cited "gross inequities" and "inaccuracies" in property tax assessment procedures on such resources.

Instead, he urged a switch to a "yield tax" on timber and oil and a change in the method for determining the value of agricultural land.

CONRADUS TOLD the commission at the Serra Building that to his knowledge California is the only major oil producing state that does not have a severance or yield tax.

He explained there is a wide margin of error in estimating the value of "proved oil reserve" as the basis for property tax assessment. He noted, for instance, that the reserves of the Kettleman Hills fields in Fresno and King counties are now estimated to be less than 50 per cent of what they were when they were discovered.

"While the proved reserves of the Wilmington-Long Beach fields were estimated at 1.2 billion barrels about 10 years ago, the most recent estimates place the same reserves closer to 800 million barrels," Conradus said.

HE ALSO NOTED that differing costs of recovery methods and changing technology make it difficult to determine values.

"Because of the many difficulties in determining 'value' of a hidden resource and the resulting inaccuracies and inequities, we recommend that the ad valorem taxation be replaced by a yield tax on net value of the well head," Conradus said.

In his report on timberlands, based on a study of six counties, Conradus noted that local assessors seldom have accurate information on the quantity and quality of standing timber.

U.S. Pacific Involvement Defended

Australia's ambassador to the U.S. Friday defended American involvement in the Pacific and said it should continue.

Sir Keith Waller addressing the Los Angeles World Affairs Council, said the United States had been trading in the Pacific since the founding of the republic.

"American expansion in the Pacific," he said, "was motivated primarily by challenge and adventure rather than territorial gain."

Waller said Red China remains the "greatest current threat to peace" in the Pacific.

Find Union Executive Innocent

Gordon Ashley, executive board member of Local 324 of the Orange County Retail Clerks Union, Friday was found innocent of contempt of court by a Los Angeles Superior Court judge hearing arguments in an intra-union squabble.

Judge F. Ray Bennett said it could not be determined if Ashley intentionally tried to mislead the court in an affidavit filed in a pending suit.

Arthur Z. Berland, secretary-treasurer of the local charged Ashley was guilty of contempt and asked Judge Bennett to make a ruling.

Ashley and Berland each have accused the other of making false statements about a recent union election.

Berland claimed Ashley made false statements in an affidavit which said Bernard wanted Local 324 to "aid" him in his pending $6 million libel suit against Joseph T. DeSilva, secretary-treasurer of Local 770 of the Los Angeles Retail Clerks Union.

WHITTIER COEDS LOOK AT RUINS OF FOUNDER'S HALL Classroom at College From Which President-elect Graduated Wracked by Fire

NIXON ALMA MATER Whittier College Hall Burns

Firemen sought clues Friday to the cause of a $200,000 fire that destroyed Old Founder's Hall at Whittier College, alma mater of President-elect, Nixon.

Nixon graduated from the Quaker institution in 1934. The school, about 15 miles southeast of Los Angeles, now has an enrollment of 1,900 students. The President-elect grew up in Whittier.

At midafternoon, twelve hours after the fire was reported, firemen continued to wet down the smoking ruins of the four-story classroom and office building.

The fire is believed to have started on the third floor, which together with the fourth floor had been sealed off years ago because of fire hazards.

"We can hardly classify it as arson just yet," said Fire Chief Rod Smith, "but I'd almost have to think someone was up there."

Smith made the damage estimate and noted there was also a sentimental value to the building since it was the first erected on the campus 70 years ago.

There were no injuries to firemen and the blaze was under control in about one hour, Smith said, although the ruins continued to smolder.

The building held several offices and classes for the drama department.

Hughes Bid for Air West Under Fire; Directors Meet

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Opponents of Howard Hughes' bid to take over Air West Friday called a special board of directors meeting to consider a merger bid from a small plastic cup manufacturer.

Edmund Converse, vice chairman of the board, called the meeting for Monday at the firm's San Mateo headquarters after board chairman Nick Bez, who supports Hughes' offer, refused to convene the directors.

BEZ TERMED the tender offer by Mallory Randall Corp. of Phoenix, Arizona, a desperate and irresponsible attempt to confuse stockholders by those opposed to Hughes' offer.

Stockholders of the regional airline, formed last April with the merger of Bonanza, Pacific and West Coast Airlines, will vote Dec. 27 on the Las Vegas billionaire's bid to buy the firm.

Directors split 12-12 on the offer and made no recommendation.

Bernard M. Goldsmith, board chairman of Mallory Randall, offered 1.9 shares of his firm's common stock for each Air West share. The manufacturing firm's stock, which has fluctuated widely this year, is currently selling for $13 a share.

Converse said the special meeting would decide what information on the Mallory Randall bid should be sent to stockholders—possibly a recommendation by the board—and discuss any other preliminaries to the Dec. 27 vote.

Robert G. Henry, Air West president, flatly denied Bez's charges that Goldsmith's offer was only an effort to block the sale to Hughes.

"IT OBVIOUSLY is not desperate or irresponsible. Mr. Goldsmith came to us and made his proposition. We felt it should be submitted to the board so it could pass on the value of the offer. It is a legitimate offer that ought to be weighed by the directors," said Henry, who also opposed the Hughes' bid.

Bez said the Mallory Randall offer was ridiculous.

"According to Standard & Poor's recent report, Mallory Randall is a very small company that manufactures plastic items such as coffee cups and tumblers," Bez said from his Seattle office.

"It has a net worth of around $1 million and net assets of around $2 million, and it is reported to be making an offer for Air West that amounts to over $90 million. Mallory Randall Corp. does not have sufficient authorized shares to even begin to make such an offer," Bez added.

PSA Offers to Buy Western Air Lines

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Pacific Southwest Airlines said Friday it plans to make a tender offer of $261 million for all the stock of Western Air Lines.

PSA's offer would exchange .8 shares of PSA common stock for each of Western's 4.89 million outstanding shares.

PSA stock closed at 29 1/2 Friday, making the offer worth about $53.32 per Western share.

PSA's offer came four days after a Las Vegas, Nev., financier, Kirk Kerkorian, bid $67 million—$45 a share in cash—for 38 per cent of Western's stock.

Spokesman at Western headquarters in Los Angeles had no comment. Neither did Kerkorian.

PSA President J. F. Andrews told newsmen his company decided to bid for a merger after studying such things as routes and equipment compatibility.

Airplanes could be used more efficiently on the two airlines' interlocking routes than they are now, Andrews said.

PSA stockholders and the Civil Aeronautics Board must decide on the offer.

Western operates in 13 states, Canada and Mexico. PSA operates only in California.

In 1967, PSA reported revenues of $48.82 million, earning $4.17 million. Western earned $12.2 million on $192.5 million in revenue.

Slander Suit Filed by L.A. Publisher

BAKERSFIELD (UPI) — Albert Mitchell, who said he is publisher of "Los Angeles Underground" a newspaper, Friday filed a $1.2 million suit against officials of California Cities Development Corp.

Mitchell, who said he published articles exposing irregularities about the operation of the Kern County retirement city, asks the defendants be enjoined from defaming him or physically assaulting him.

The suit claims the defendants slandered him following publication of the articles.

The suit names a total of 30 defendants, including 10 John Does.

NEGRO IN WHITE AREA

Gallant Barber Losing 'Gamble'

SAN BERNARDINO (UPI) — Robert Andrews bet his house, his credit and his life savings that he could succeed as a Negro barber in a white community. But he's losing.

"It seemed to me that every Negro going into business was confined in... the Negro area," says Andrews. He thought he'd try "venturing out."

So he bought a shop in a Caucasian part of town. When he first saw the place, it had been closed a week because its owner had died. He fell in love with it.

"It's the only shop I've ever seen laid out like it is," Andrews said. "It has wall-to-wall carpeting and partitioned booths. It's an ultra modern shop. It's unique."

HE SAID the shop was an excellent buy. Furnishings were appraised at more than their purchase price. So he took his gamble.

Andrews withdrew his savings, $875; borrowed another $3,500 from the bank, and became an independent businessman. He changed the name of the shop and started cutting hair.

But not much of it.

Under its former owner, the shop earned $310-$350 a week, enough for two barbers. Now business dropped to $35-$40 a week—not enough for expenses, let alone salaries.

But the customers who stayed with him were "strictly Caucasian," and it gave Andrews heart.

"They proved to me that they didn't mind my cutting their hair,"

BUT THEN two weeks ago Andrews got notice from the company that holds the mortgage on his house that it planned to foreclose and turn out his family.

The San Bernardino Sun-Telegram did a story about his plight and the Ministerial Association urged its members to get their hair cut at his shop. "Business increased considerably," Andrews said.

He started moonlighting as a night watchman and started appointment-hair-cutting for busy people.

The mortgage company told him it would reinstate his credit if he makes a payment. And he just might be able to.

"I believe the shop can make it," he said. "But it takes time. I'd hate to lose it and the house and everything now!"

Juvenile Theft Ring Smashed

SAN RAFAEL (UPI) — Police Friday disclosed they have broken up a ring of juveniles who burglarized suburban homes and sold the loot to well-dressed men in the San Francisco financial district.

Three boys and a girl looked out were arrested. They were identified as children from middle-class San Francisco families. Six other youngsters were being sought.

OFFICERS said the gang participated in a dozen carefully planned burglaries in Marin County. They stole at least 24 automobiles in San Francisco, drove north to burglarize homes, then drove the loot back to San Francisco and peddled it "to straight types in business suits" in the financial district, according to San Rafael Police Inspector Richard Douglas.

One member of the gang told Douglas that at the high school he attended "you either join the dope crowd or the stealing crowd. I preferred the stealing crowd."

THE GROUP reportedly sold a $1,100 color television console on the street for $135. Other loot was disposed of in the same way by selling it to people on the street.

The gang was broken up when a resident in San Rafael noticed the youngsters near a neighbor's house. Police closed in and captured them as they fled. The suspects were aged 15 to 17. They were booked in the juvenile hall on charges of burglary and auto theft.

Disney Wins With 'Mr. Wholesome'

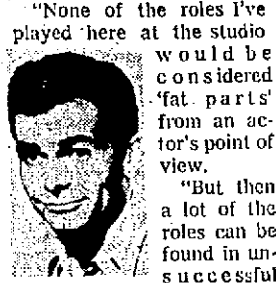

By VERNON SCOTT
HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If the Disney cartoonists had to deliver a flesh-and-blood prototype of the clean-cut young American breadwinner they would have invented Dean Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones conceive intly came up with the idea more than 30 years ago, however, and the Disney people latched onto him.

Jones is a young version of Fred MacMurray. He is also (ugh) wholesome. The kind of guy you'd like to have for a neighbor. His face disqualifies him from playing villains, foreigners, dope addicts, sex symbols or satyrs.

The roles I play in Disney pictures really don't require me to 'act,' because intensive acting wouldn't be compatible with the pictures. It would be a jarring note.

"None of the roles I've played here at the studio would be considered 'fat parts' from an actor's point of view."

JONES

His facial features are such that widows would trust him with their life savings. Boy Scouts should look so reverent, clean, thirsty, courteous, brave and all that jazz.

Underneath the innocent eyes and noble profile may lay the heart of a poltroon. But at least it doesn't show on the surface.

Thus far Jones has starred for Disney in "Monkeys Go Home," "Blackboard Jungle," "The Ugly Dachshund," "That Darn Cat" and "The Love Bug."

This Christmas season he can be seen co-starring with a horse in "The Horse in the Gray Flannel Suit."

His first four pictures for Disney have hauled in $47 million, which means more persons have seen him in the studio's light comedies than have viewed him in all his 15 other movies rolled together.

"I just hope we can keep the public interested," Jones said in the commissary of the camp-like Disney studio.

"There's a certain bubble you try to maintain carefully — so it won't pop."

What, pray, does Jones do if he doesn't "act" in Disney pictures?

"I use Mickey Mouse, the dreams of Walt Disney, the atmosphere of the Disney image when I work," Jones explained.

"In this new picture I talk to the horse like I would my own dog. I feel I have a sense of humor along with a sense of history and characterization."

"The characters I play for Disney have fewer dimensions than I do. They take things more seriously, thus providing more humor by letting the comedy play off the role. That's how I do it."

One thing Jones really doesn't admit to himself. If he resembled Peter Falk or Neville Brand, the guard wouldn't let him past the studio gate.

Castro Fishing Fleet Called Spy Operation

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Fidel Castro's big fishing fleet is actually a naval guerrilla fleet, his sister, Juanita, has charged.

"Its mission is to spy and to infiltrate men and arms principally to the coasts of Central and South America and also to the African continent," she said in an exile radio broadcast.

Mehta Conducts Bruckner's 9th, Elgar's Cello Concerto

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

An old-fashioned coupling of two post-Romantic works is Zubin Mehta's penultimate Los Angeles Philharmonic program, before beginning his 12-month sabbatical leave, this weekend in the Pavilion.

It pains Edward Elgar's intensely lyrical E minor Cello Concerto with the large-boned and prolix beauties of Anton Bruckner's Ninth Symphony.

And, as conducted by Mehta, with the brilliant Jacqueline Du Pre bringing her usual penetration to the solo part of the concerto, the essentially minor character of both these works cannot dilute the impact of undeniably (on Thursday at least) first-rank performances.

and profound as its loser-composer must have wanted it to be. Of course the final Adagio (as you know, Bruckner died before he could write a fourth movement) still outstays its welcome, but experience tells us that is the writer's fault. Actually, Mehta conducts as tight and convincing a reading as our generation is likely to hear.

The third time around, one begins to wonder if Jacqueline Du Pre's very exciting stage personality is not being fully utilized. Is the cello really enough to satisfy her need for dramatic self-expression?

Hearing and watching her attack the fragile lines of Elgar's poetic piece, one was struck by the incongruity of it all. It was like hearing Mercedes McCambridge recite "Mary Had a Little Lamb." Or entrusting a folk-rock band with the complete works of Anton Webern. Or trying to embrace a cream-puff. The material has limitations, after all.

In response to the audience's reception, the cellist offered a solo encore — the Sarabande from Bach's D minor Suite.

'DIRTY WESTERN PROPAGANDA'

Soviets Cut Film Imports

MOSCOW (AP) — Although Soviet moviegoers prefer "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" to such heavy-handed Russian offerings as "Lenin in Poland," the Kremlin is cutting down on Western film imports.

Before the ouster of Nikita Khrushchev, 24 per cent of all movies shown in the Soviet Union were from the West. This has since dropped to 13 per cent, in a move reminiscent of Stalinism.

Official figures indicate Russians flocked to see "Some Like It Hot," "Zorba the Greek" and "Divorce Italian Style," while spurning Soviet offerings of "I Serve the Soviet Homeland" and the travels of Lenin.

But the Kremlin-controlled press regularly publishes letters from readers denouncing "dirty" and "harmful" Western movies, and local Communist leaders demand a complete halt to such "Western propaganda."

This follows the government line that ideological struggle between East and West is getting sharper and the Soviet Union must resist influence from the enemy camp. Stalin took a similarly hostile view of Western culture, claiming it threatened communism.

However, some movies from the West have to be let into this country to enable Soviet movies to be distributed abroad, since such arrangements are made on a mutual basis.

The Soviet Union has increased film production and imports from other

Biographer Gives Sinatra His Due

SINATRA: Twentieth Century Romantic. By Arnold Shaw. Holt, Rinehart & Winston, $5.95.

Frankie Boy is a multifaceted fellow and his many images — singer, actor, idol, tormented lover, brawler, big spender, philanthropist, champion of unpopular causes, and screen, tube and disk producer — have been both good and horrible.

Arnold Shaw, music publisher and biographer, presents an imposing mass of evidence on Sinatra's public and private doings, his successes and virtues, his failures and failings, insisting only that Sinatra be given his due — despite scandalous displays of bad taste — as a magnetic and remarkable personality, the most spectacular pop vocalist of our time — and no phony.

"Basically," Shaw explains, "this is the study of a public man... It is not a couch or keyhole probe, but an analysis of a unique show-business career."

SINATRA once told an interviewer that he "lived a life of violent emotional contradictions" and this, Shaw's book bears out, brought him incomparable professional triumphs and devastating personal despair.

Shaw shows how Sinatra's emotional involvement and literal identification with his lyrics, his fervent appeal, by extra-sensory communication, to his audience for involvement, rocketed him to stardom. Certainly press agents helped along the bobbysox swoonery, but Shaw contends every one of those girls just knew Sinatra was singing to her and her alone.

"I have an over-acute capacity for sadness as well as emotion," Sinatra said. "When I sing, I believe I'm honest... You can be the most artistically perfect performer in the world, but an audience is like a broad — if you're indifferent, Endsville."

WHEN FRANK Jr. made his New York debut, a lack of enthusiasm was detected by Dad. Sparks flew in Junior's dressing room. "Get lost," Senior shouted. "No matter what your name is, you're nothing if you're not excited about what you're doing."

And yet, that same emotionalism and proud individualism got him into his celebrated brawls, clashes with the press and ill-starred marriages with Ava Gardner and Mia Farrow.

Casual readers of newspapers and fan magazines are hep to the escapades and ups and downs of the Sinatra story. Shaw fills all those pieces in proper perspective, tools with which to like or dislike Sinatra — who, as Mr. Big of Showbiz, no longer frets about fans' worship, so long as they buy his records and go to his movies. — Morry Rabin

No Mideast War Peril Now, Israeli Says

LONDON (UPI) — Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel said Friday there was no immediate danger of a new Mideast war. He pledged perseverance by the Jewish state toward peace.

Eban met at length with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson and Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart and then told a news conference: "The cease-fire is not on the verge of collapse, nor is the Mideast on the verge of an explosion. It is possible to maintain the cease-fire structure which offers the basis for the pursuit of a permanent solution."

Eban said Israel has agreed to participate in a new peace probe which would take the form of a conference among the rival nations with Gunnar V. Jarring, the Mideast envoy of United Nations Secretary General Thant.

The Israeli foreign minister said this and other peace efforts have been rebuffed by Egypt. He added that Israel was prepared to "persevere" while bringing cease-fire breaches "under control."

Eban warned that any Israeli withdrawal from occupied Arab lands is conditional on a firm agreement for a peace settlement and "until all relevant matters, including secure borders, are arranged."

Wilson and Stewart were reported to have urged that Israel and the Arab states issue "clear declarations" accepting the Nov. 22, 1967, resolution by the U.N. Security Council. They said they should do this "in the clear knowledge" that the resolution implies Israeli withdrawal and Arab approval of a lasting and secure peace.

Eban said that Israel, while amenable to phased peace negotiations, rejects the idea of any phased troop withdrawal to parallel stage-by-stage progress at the conference table.

He made it clear that in Israel's view any peace in the Middle East must be agreed to by the participants in the June 1967 war and cannot be "grafted" by the big powers.

Eban expressed confidence that, on the basis of his talks with former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton, there would be no basic U.S. changes in Mideast policy with the inauguration of Richard M. Nixon, who sent Scranton to the Mideast.

At the U.N. Friday, Jordanian Ambassador Muhammad H. el-Farra gave Thant a memorandum from citizens of the West Bank of the Jordan River rejecting the continuing occupation of the area by Israeli forces.

U.S. Hit for Vote on S. Africa

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The United States spoke out Friday against a move to expel South Africa from a U.N. organization, then defended its action against charges of racism.

In an emotional speech before the General Assembly, U.S. Ambassador J.R. Wiggins said the expulsion effort was unconstitutional and that a showdown on the issue would hurt the world organization.

The move to eject South Africa from the U.N. conference on Trade and Development was backed by the Afro-Asian bloc which accuses South Africa of violating human rights with its avowed national policy of racial separation or apartheid.

BUT a roll-call vote on the question failed to win either side a two-thirds vote and the assembly president ruled the issue dead.

The vote was preceded by a debate during which a Tanzanian representative charged the United States and other Western powers with indulging in "racism" and "hypocrisy" by backing South Africa.

His voice rising in agitation, Wiggins denounced the charges.

"I regret the inference and the suggestions that the position taken on the issue on this occasion (by the United States) ... springs from racial discrimination or any species of racism," he said.

"I DEEPLY regret that the speaker who preceded me suggested that (a) roll call on this issue ... is a fair division of the membership of this organization between those who are friends of the African nations ... and those who are their enemies."

Wiggins said that while "it should not be necessary on this occasion to say so ... I feel required to repeat that the United States ... has denounced and opposed apartheid in South Africa and has resisted every other form of racial discrimination."

The Soviet bloc was among the 23 abstentions on the 52-47 vote against South Africa.

Home Burglarized

Household items valued at $205 were taken from the home of Frederick Kline, 112 Argonne Ave., by burglars who forced open a rear window, Long Beach police reported Friday.

LOST GREEK CITY OF SYBARIS FOUND

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The lost Greek city of Sybaris, its riches and decadent pleasures buried for 2,500 years, has been found on the Ionian shore of Italy.

Archaeologists Giuseppe Foti of Italy and Froelich G. Rainey of the University of Pennsylvania museum announced the site discovery here.

They said they have established "beyond a reasonable doubt" that Sybaris lies beneath 15 to 18 feet of earth on the plain of Crati near Thurii, about a mile from the Ionian shoreline.

The announcement climaxed a century-old search by scholars of many nations for the ruins of the Greek colony, reputedly the wealthiest most luxury loving and decadent of its time. Sybaris was conquered and destroyed in 510 B.C. by its neighbors from Croton.

The search by Foti's Italian Department of Antiquities and Rainey's museum staff lasted eight years. They said location of the ruins was due largely to an instrument called a cesium magnetometer to locate objects 20 feet below the surface.

Archaeologists drilled at the site of Sybaris and removed pieces of archaic tile and pottery and struck numerous stone structures.

New Italy Government Takes Office Amid Wave of Strikes

ROME (UPI) — Italy's new center-left government, headed by Premier Mariano Rumor, took office Friday with a wave of strikes shaking the country and students demonstrating for educational reforms.

President Giuseppe Saragat swore in Rumor and his 26-man cabinet of Christian Democrats, Socialists and Republicans 24 days after former Premier Giovanni Leone resigned.

"I AM AWARE I am undertaking my mission at a delicate time in the life of the country, at a time when serious problems are pressing," Rumor said. He is a 53-year-old Social Democrat.

Underscoring that remark, tens of thousands of industrial workers in the Florence and Venice regions staged a 24-hour general strike, the fifth in a series this week aimed at protesting wage inequalities among different parts of the country and high unemployment.

Gasoline station attendants throughout the nation also took the day off to demand a higher share of the price of gasoline, forcing motorists who forgot to fill up Thursday to take buses or taxis Friday.

Students in seven cities demonstrated or occupied classrooms, and secondary school teachers warned they would go on strike if the government didn't clamp down on the students.

The teachers were angry because students roughed up a vice principal in Rome earlier this week.

Rumor's cabinet, completed Thursday night, must go before Parliament for a vote of confidence next week. Parliament is not considered likely to complete action on that until Dec. 23, the day it adjourns for Christmas holidays, but the three parties' comfortable majority made it obvious the vote would be favorable.

CONTINUED student and labor agitation was expected until the government is ready to act on urgent economic and educational reforms, sometime in January.

Thrill Slaying Case Now in Jury's Hands

NEWCASTLE, England (UPI) — Lawyers made their final arguments Friday in the "macabre and grotesque case" of two girls accused of the thrill slaying of two small boys.

Norma Bell, 13, and her 11-year-old friend, Mary Bell, both have pleaded innocent to charges of strangling Martin Brown, 4, and Brian Howe, 3, last summer for the "pleasure and excitement of killing."

The girls are neighbors in the "Rat Alley" slum section of Newcastle. Prosecuting attorney Rudolph Lyons told the jury, "the evidence in this macabre and grotesque case is now ended."

Each girl has accused the other of being solely responsible for the murders in testimony they gave during the seven-day trial.

Child psychiatrists, the mother of Brian Howe, forensic experts and numerous others testified during the trial.

If the girls are convicted, they will be sentenced "at the Queen's pleasure," which means the Home Office will decide their fate. Confinement and medical supervision could be the end result.

Czechs to Strike if Leaders Ousted

PRAGUE (AP) — Worried Czechoslovak workers and students threatened Friday to carry out a general strike if the Communist party Central Committee announces it is ousting their liberal leaders.

The Central Committee ended a two-day meeting in Prague castle Friday night. Party sources said the committee approved a 35-page resolution on economic policy and government changes that was to be made public today.

QUALIFIED sources had insisted while the meeting was under way that no changes in the top party leadership would be made there. But workers and students, their suspicions fueled by the lack of information on the closed meeting, threatened strikes if their liberal favorites lose power.

For the first time since the Soviet invasion last August a newspaper carried a threat of a general strike.

Prace, the trade union organ, published a letter from workers at a Prague tool factory demanding the National Assembly Chairman Josef Smrkovsky, the most outspoken liberal in the party leadership, remain in his job.

"In order to make our declaration entirely clear," the letter said, "we shall oppose his recall from office by all the means available to the working class, including a general strike."

These workers said they had sent a letter to the Central Committee declaring they would work only for the reform system planned before the Soviet invasion by party chief Alexander Dubcek, Smrkovsky, President Ludvik Svoboda and others.

Theater, Marines, Actress Gather Toys for Poor Kids

A diminutive movie-television actress joins a team of strapping Marines at the Towne Theater at 10 a.m. today in the 21st annual Toys for Tots campaign.

Kathryn Hays, whose major credits in recent months include appearance on "Star Trek," "Mannix" and "High Chaparral," is helping the Leathernecks relieve Long Beach small fry of new (or near-new) toys, the only price for admission to the theater.

The show features Jerry Lewis in "The Big Mouth," together with a long, star studded lineup of cartoons.

Marines from the 3rd Air Naval Gunfire Liaison Company, USMCR, were to be on hand at the Towne to help youngsters deliver their toys into huge containers.

"These toys have helped make Christmas happier for needy youngsters for the past 20 years," said Gunnery Sgt. Donald Pearce.

"The Marines have taken a great deal of personal happiness in being able to see that the toys reach In 1967, Pearce said, his Marines gathered 10,000 kids who otherwise wouldn't have much of a Christmas.

The toys needn't be new, Pearce said. Near-new is good enough. They needn't have Christmas wrapping on them, either. There is only one taboo, the sergeant said:

"State law forbids circulation of stuffed toys which have been previously owned. If someone wants to bring a stuffed toy, it must be in its original wrapper and must be

AT STATE HOSPITAL Patients Relearn the Joy of Giving

By DON KIRKLAND
Staff Writer

A wrinkled hand probed the shiny, metallic surface of a toy truck, and a smile grew in intensity across the too-often sad face.

It was a new experience for the patients at Metropolitan State Hospital in Norwalk—an experience "they just couldn't believe," said an aide.

This year, for the first time—thanks to a program initiated by the Long Beach chapter of the Mental Health Association—patients at the big state-run hospital got to "shop" for Christmas gifts—toys, clothes, household gadgets, all donated by service clubs, all destined to buoy the patients' usually sagging spirits at Christmas time.

"YOU CAN'T IMAGINE the boost a patient gets from being able to give a gift," said Mrs. Lois Riddle of the association's Long Beach office. "Some of the patients came into our little shop on the hospital grounds, and just couldn't believe it."

Many patients cannot leave the hospital grounds, and therefore cannot shop for gifts for their friends or loved ones. Realizing the psychological importance of gift-giving, association members launched a campaign for donated presents from area service clubs and local residents.

As a trial program, about 50 patients were permitted to visit the hastily built gift shop and select from an array of no-cost presents.

Dr. George Abe, superintendent, said he was pleased with results of the project and hoped it might be extended next year to all patients. The association promised it would.

CHRISTMAS HOOPLA

Spray, among the most intrepid bottlenose dolphins at Marineland of the Pacific, scores a bull's-eye as she sails through a mistletoe hoop in a special salute to the Yule season.

BLIND KIDS GETTING BRAILLE STORYBOOK

Blind children in Orange and Los Angeles counties are getting a big Christmas present again this year with the publication of a storybook in Braille entitled "Expectations."

Preview copies were presented to two Long Beach blind children, Mike and Sheila Killian, son and daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Merle F. Killian of 6263 E. Sixth St.

Formal presentation of the book was made Friday at Disneyland by Miss Betty Kalagian, editor of the annual volume, who is also a member of the staff of the Braille Institute in Los Angeles.

In addition to verse, the book — now in its 20th year — contains stories for young children. It is distributed to blind children free through auspices of the Braille Institute, individuals and organizations in both counties.

Additional information about the book and the institute may be obtained by contacting Miss Kalagian at 741 N. Vermont Ave., Los Angeles, or Mrs. Shirley Grove, Orange County program coordinator for the institute, at 11851 Gilbert St., Garden Grove. — By Bob Sanders.

What an Independent, Press-Telegram
Carrier Route Has Done for Me

by TOMMY TANNER
I, P-T Newspaperboy, age 15

"My route has helped me learn how to handle money and it has given me a greater sense of responsibility," reports Tommy.

"I deliver my newspapers down 10th Street to Gardena and over to Cherry Ave. I go to Washington Junior High. My favorite hobby is slot car racing and my favorite sport is basketball. I buy clothes with my money and I have saved $50. I have won $5 in cash prizes and a trip to San Francisco in just the few months I have had my route. When I graduate from high school, I intend to go to Long Beach City College."

We congratulate Tommy for getting a good start in the business world and maintaining his interest.

Historic Grandeur of State Unfolds

CALIFORNIA: An Illustrated History. By Don E. Fehrenbacher and Norman E. Tutorow. Van Nostrand, $12.50.

Here is the San Francisco waterfront as it looked in 1851. Then we see Telegraph Hill as it appeared in 1865. Obsequies are held for Lincoln as San Franciscans join the nation in mourning the martyred leader. Photographs of mining operations at Foster's Bar, of early hydraulic mining, of an early cradle for washing ore, of a gold-dust purse, make the Gold Rush days live again.

The Emperor Norton, the madman beloved by San Franciscans in the mid-19th century, poses in full panoply (he styled himself "Emperor of the United States and Protector of Mexico").

PIGTAILED residents walk the streets of San Francisco's Chinatown in the late 19th century.

A playbill for the Grand Opera House announces that Mr. Henry Irving and Miss Ellen Terry are appearing in a drama called "Louis XI." It is a "farewell performance" on Sept. 16, 1893.

"Avoid the Delays and Dangers of Navigation by Taking the Union Central Pacific Line Via Omaha," an 1875 poster advises. "Pullman Palace Cars Run Through from Omaha to San Francisco with but One Change."

AT THE turn of the century, Teddy Roosevelt poses with a group of VIPs of the day under a giant sequoia in Yosemite National Park.

In such photographs and other illustrations (290 of them) is California's history re-created. Nor is the 20th century slighted; in fact, the book's emphasis is on California in two world wars, in depression, in prosperity, right up to today's political and civil unrest. — N.H.

WESTERN WORDS: A Dictionary of the American West. By Ramon F. Adams. University of Oklahoma Press, $7.95.

Ramon Adams' "Western Words" first appeared in 1944, and it became the authoritative lexicon on the lingo of the cowboy. Now twice the size of the original, the new "Western Words" covers the sheepman, the trapper, the buffalo hunter, the freighter and packer, the stagecoach driver, the boatman of the Western river, the Western logger, miner and gambler and the rodeo rider as well. This new edition is twice the size of the original.

The cowboy, we learn, called clean sheets "clean straw." A horse's head was a "fiddle." A "roadhouse" was a cowboy's term "for a corral in an out-of-the-way place used by rustlers to hold stolen stock temporarily."

WHEN A cowboy waved or slapped a hat against a horse's side while riding a buck, he was "fanning," or "fanning on her fat." A horse that pulled back on the halter rope "fell out of bed." When a cowboy was hungry he "felt like chawin'."

When the logger quits his job and asks for his time, he says "Mix me a walk." When he "picks a balloon" he carries his bedroll.

The Westerner's lingo is the most colorful of all in America. It is loaded with humor, and this lexicon misses none of it.

Boys in Rome Keep the Class in Stitches

ROME, Ga. (AP) — Forty-eight boys, all seniors, are taking family living courses, including sewing, at Pepperell High School.

Mrs. Roth Glover, an instructor, said many of the boys sew better than some of the girls. She said the boys must be seniors before they are allowed to participate in the classes so they will be big enough that the other pupils don't tease them.

North State Tideland's Gold Found

L.A. JOLLA (UPI) — Several potentially profitable gold concentrations have been located on the continental shelf off the coast of Northern California, it was disclosed Friday.

The areas are in ocean sediments between Crescent City and Eureka, according to two scientists from the La Jolla Marine Geology Laboratory of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Dr. George W. Moore and Eli Silver, who recently completed a year-long investigation of the area, said concentrations came from samples taken from the ocean floor surface, but in themselves were not of a high enough grade for mining.

HOWEVER, they said, some of the areas contained thick sediments, up to 30 feet deep, and that gold residues might be more highly concentrated at lower levels.

Four of the areas where gold was pinpointed, they said, showed gross differences in content. Those areas are located north of the Pt. St. George, west of Crescent City, south of the mouth of the Klamath River, and north of Trinidad Head.

The normal gold reading for the entire area, the scientists said, was about 10 parts of gold per billion found in a sample from the area north of Trinidad Head.

Moore estimated the 390 parts per billion figure was worth about 63 cents per cubic yard, and that to profitably "mine" the gold would require a concentration returning about $1 to $2 a cubic yard.

THEY concluded the concentration of gold, which flowed there from the Klamath Mountains about 1,000 years ago, cannot be discounted until the depths of the sediment have been drilled and assessed.

The Bureau of Mines attempted to drill into the sediment over the summer but was frustrated by heavy sea swells, they said. Another attempt probably will be made next summer.

'Friend to Labor' Unruh Hits Unions

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Assemblyman Jess M. Unruh said Friday he is still "a friend of labor" — despite his view that the trade union movement has failed to help solve the problem of unemployment among minority groups.

"Nothing that I said should be construed as implying that I am bitter towards labor," Unruh said in a statement issued by his office.

"I HAVE made my criticisms as a friend of labor, and I have voiced them because I want labor to succeed in its announced goal, not because I want it to fail," he added. "Labor can succeed only if its friends are courageous enough to look at its procedures dispassionately and objectively."

Unruh, Assembly speaker for seven years, pointed to a "decline of liberalism in organized labor" in a 33-page booklet published by his office.

There is nothing new in the booklet. It consists mostly of speeches Unruh made during the fall election campaign. Also included are some articles he has written.

Unruh said he was disturbed by interpretations placed on his criticism of labor.

In the booklet, Unruh said: "Minority unemployment is almost universally recognized as the principal canker in our central cities. The labor movement could be expected to be in the forefront of attacking this problem, but it is not."

"THERE IS not even any very effective self-policing of discrimination in most labor unions. Racism in the building trades unions is a national scandal. 'It can be most convincingly argued that the policies of the National Association of Manufacturers regarding minority employment are often more progressive than those of the AFL-CIO,' he said.

The spokesman said a preliminary diagnosis indicated he died of an overdose of drugs.

BANQUET IN BEVERLY HILLS L.A. Jewry to Honor HHH

LOS ANGELES (CNS) — Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey next week will pay his first visit to Southern California since he lost his bid for the presidency.

The vice president and Mrs. Humphrey will be guests of the Jewish National Fund at a banquet hosted by philanthropist Mark Boyar and his wife at the Beverly Hills Hotel Tuesday.

Fred Kahan, the fund's western regional director, said the dinner will be for the friends of the vice president who are planting groves of trees in the Hubert Humphrey Forest in Israel.

Kahan said the dinner will be "totally nonpolitical and dedicated to a man we consider to be a true friend of our organization and its goals."

Humphrey's running mate, Sen. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, will be similarly honored at a Hanukkah banquet at the Beverly Hilton Hotel on Dec.

22. Sir Barnett Janner, a member of the British parliament, will also be a guest at the banquet, also sponsored by the JNF Council of Los Angeles.

RANCHOS LOS AMIGOS Circus Comes to Hospital Kids

Story and Photos
By VINT MADER

The kids in Rancho Los Amigos Hospital couldn't go to the circus.

So the circus came to them.

On Friday — it turned out to be a lucky Friday the 13th — the Paul Eagles Circus Luncheon Club turned up at the county facility in Downey to bring a touch of pre-Christmas joy to the hearts of youngsters who really haven't tasted much.

Until the circus came, life for the Rancho Los Amigos kids had been largely dull routine and orderly diet.

The circus quickly changed all that.

The tall sides of the huge circus tent were rolled up in the warmth of the afternoon, allowing 300 youngsters to crowd under the "Big Top" in wheel chairs, on electrically-powered stretchers or traction beds pushed by hospital volunteers.

Together with adult patients, there were more than 500 in the enthusiastic audience.

They were feted to a wide ranging show including aerial acts, performing elephants, a teeterboard show by Ruff Saunders, Paula Dell and Jim Jones, performing ponies and dogs directed by Bill Dedrich and other crowd-pleasers.

The Los Angeles-based club didn't forget popcorn, either. Combined with the candy and presents handed to each youngster, the events pleased those sitting erect and delighted those on their backs, immobilized in body casts and those forced to observe through mirror.

Someday the kids at Rancho Los Amigos will probably be able to enjoy a circus like anyone else.

Until then, the Paul Eagles Circus Luncheon Club will stick around, making sure no one misses the joys of the circus — just because they happen to be flat on their back.

SPARKS TREASURE HUNT

$43,000 Cache Found in Dead Man's Home

Because Lyle Shepherd didn't trust banks, his Seal Beach neighbors are wondering if he really trusted his house as a cache for his treasure.

When the 61-year-old crane operator was crushed in an industrial accident Nov. 18 in Los Angeles, coroner's investigators said they found less than $5 in his wallet.

But sheriff's deputies, scouring the home of the dead man at 318 13th St., turned up $43,000 — all in $20s — and promptly sent for Deputy Public Administrator Minnott.

ON FRIDAY, the county official — accompanied by Shepherd's stepbrother, Edwin Shepherd, of Eldon, Mo. — used a mine detector to scour every inch of the back yard at Shepherd's Seal Beach house.

Minnott said, after a painstaking, two-hour probe, nothing even remotely resembling a treasure hoard had been discovered.

They found almost everything else — buried pipes, metal-bearing rocks,

Pedestrian, 75, Hit and Killed in Crosswalk

A 75-year-old man was killed Friday night when he was struck by an auto in a crosswalk at Garfield Avenue and Century Boulevard in South Gate.

Charles Callis, 7422 Walnut St., South Gate, died at 715 p.m. in St. Francis Hospital shortly after he was hit by an auto driven by Dennis Hoffman, 18, of 5751 Taft Ave., South Gate.

Hoffman was not held pending further investigation, police said.

metal supports for the foundation of the house — but no money.

That satisfied the Missouri relative, the county and, perhaps, the state.

But it did little to end speculation in the beachfront Community where many figure if Shepherd didn't trust banks, he might not have put all his eggs — or his $20s — in one house.

NO SOONER had the county officials pulled away Friday than a small cluster of neighbors formed outside.

"They didn't check the front yard," one noted. "He could have buried it in the front yard."

YULE VOLUNTEERS WORK Gifts Assured for L.B. Kids

A score of volunteers spent Friday night wrapping gifts so hundreds of Long Beach youngsters won't be left off Santa's list this Christmas.

The gifts will be given to more than 2,000 children from low-income families who'll be bused to Long Beach Municipal Auditorium next Saturday for three hours of Yuletide reveling.

The presents were wrapped by volunteers at the office of the Commission on Economic Opportunities, sponsors of the Saturday party.

The youngsters were invited to the party through welfare agencies that screened names submitted from Long Beach poverty pockets in the Central District, West Side and downtown.

Party entertainment will be provided by the Long Beach Municipal Band, "Keystone Cop" David Skelton on his minimotorcycle, and Arky the Clown from the Birdcage Theatre at Knott's Berry Farm.

Also appearing will be the Komic Kapers group, retired clowns and aspiring clowns who perform for benefit and charity events.

Civic Leader in L.B., John A. Paap, Dead

Services have been set for Tuesday at 11 a.m. at Peek Mortuary in Westminster for John A. Paap, prominent Long Beach civic leader and attorney.

Paap, 63, of 238 Roycroft Ave., died Thursday night.

An eloquent speaker with a wide range of interests, Paap was born in Australia and came to Long Beach as a newly naturalized citizen just in time for the 1933 earthquake.

He lived here ever since, serving as president of the 20-30 Club, Junior Chamber of Commerce, Council of Service Clubs, Recreation Commission, Community Playhouse and 49er Booster Club.

He also played a leading role in the Boys' Club, USO and All States Society.

An aviation buff who chaired Wings Over the Nation and Kitty Hawk Day programs here, Paap played a leading role in developing the Long Beach Airport and was selected chairman of the dedication ceremonies of the airport

He is survived by his wife, Madeleine; sons, Lt. John E. Paap and Richard V.; a daughter, Mrs. Sandra Williamson; a brother, Dr. George Paap, and four grandchildren.

1968 L.B. CONSTRUCTION TOPS $50-MILLION MARK

Three permits issued for comparatively minor projects at the Douglas plant helped Friday to push the Long Beach construction valuation for 1968 past the $50-million mark.

Two permits, one for $6,000 and one for $4,000, were issued for the erection of prefabricated buildings by Carl Brooks Inc.

The third permit, for $30,000, covers construction of an acoustical test facility and the relocation of two bomb shelters on the westerly side of the plant at 3855 Lakewood Blvd. Diversified Builders will be the contractor.

A permit also was issued Friday to Russ Painter for construction of an apartment building at 433 Tremont Ave., valued at $46,000.

State Seeking Bids on $292,000 CSLB Project, 5 Others

By BOB SCHMIDT
From Our State Bureau

Bids are being sought on five Southland construction projects totaling $1,467,000 — including new facilities for California State College at Long Beach — the state department of General Services announced Friday.

Funds for the projects have been appropriated in budgets from previous years.

Projects up for bid include:

—Site development at the Long Beach campus, costing $292,000.

—Initial physical education facilities at Cal State Dominguez Hills, $345,000.

—Ward ventilation systems at Fairview State Hospital, Costa Mesa, $267,000.

—A division of highways maintenance station, Costa Mesa, $292,000.

—An office building addition for the Department of Motor Vehicles, Santa Ana, $271,000.

The projects will be jointly sponsored by the state and the federal government through grants from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

$100,000 Fire at L.A. Port

Drums of coconut oil and paper margarine boxes went up in flames at the Vegetable Oil Products Co., at the Port of Los Angeles' Pier 189 Friday in Wilmington, causing an estimated $100,000 damage.

Four companies of Los Angeles City firefighters and personnel aboard two fireboats contained the blaze within 15 minutes after it erupted shortly after 2 p.m.

Battalion Cmdr. John Murphy, in charge of L.A. Harbor Division fire-fighting operations, said the blaze was restricted to the oil drums and paper boxes and did not damage structure of the two-story brick building.

He said firemen spent four hours quenching embers and spluttering sparks before the fire was declared controlled.

Cmdr. Murphy said cause of the blaze was not immediately determined and is under investigation.

Merger of Teacher, Student Units Asked

The student body president of California State College at Long Beach termed the college's Academic Senate obsolete Friday and asked professors to set the stage for students and faculty to "run their university as equals."

Rex Gay, writing in the campus Forty-Niner newspaper, told the Academic Senate — which represents college faculty members — "this campus will move and it is your choice as to whether we move together."

The student body president, who favors merging the Academic Senate with a representative student legislature, cited gains made by his administration in getting a greater voice in college affairs.

"THESE ACCOMPLISHMENTS were achieved by intelligent, mature students versed in power politics," Gay said. "We are not satisfied nor will we stand still." He warned professors not to take comfort that "childish outbursts by several of my fellow students" will bring a large scale student reaction which would "paralyze the student movement in a struggle within its ranks."

He referred primarily to some members of the Students for a Democratic Society who have attended Academic Senate meetings to push for sweeping change.

He said Cal-State Long Beach was the most "progressive student oriented campus in the state" and said it reached that position "not through emotional outbursts of an immature few, but through the directed and intelligent movements of a politically astute student government."

ROBERT GOETZ
Will Seek New Trial

'Credit-Card Slayer' Will Seek New Trial

The defense attorney for convicted "credit-card slayer" Robert Goetz said Friday he will seek a new trial for his client after a Long Beach Superior Court jury sentenced Goetz to life in prison.

Goetz was found guilty Tuesday by the same jury in the Feb. 29 murder of Donovan A. Dutton, 50-year-old San Diego naval engineer.

Judge James Turpit — following the 27-year-old ex-convict back to court Jan. 7 for formal sentencing.

ing. Judge Turpit said at that time he will consider the new trial request by deputy Public Defender Edward Olson, who represented Goetz.

Olson said he will base his new trial request on his belief the guilty verdict was contrary to evidence presented during the trial.

Goetz was found guilty of first-degree murder in slaying Dutton, whose battered body — stabbed numerous times through the heart with a screwdriver — was found in a room in an Ocean Boulevard hotel.

Trucker Claims He's Innocent

A 35-year-old truckdriver pleaded innocent to a Long Beach murder charge Friday and his Superior Court trial was set for Jan. 30.

Robert Lee Higgs, of Emeryville, was arrested after the body of a Dallas trucker was found Nov. 4 in Higgs' locked trailer van in North Long Beach.

The victim, Steve LeRoy Albers, 48, had employed Higgs as a helper prior to his death, police said.

Albers reportedly carried $1,300 in expense money police said was missing.

Higgs was booked for murder and robbery after police tracked him to Oakland several days after the slaying.

SERVING SHOPPERS IS A FEAT—FOR FEET

Christmas is a swell(ing) time for gift-seekers and sales people alike, and if jangles add a mite of discord to the jingles of Yuletide this picture of clerks at the General Store in Lakewood's Candle Shops is a fitting reminder of the frantic buying pace and the physical, as well as fiscal, toll it takes. In foreground is store proprietor Lee Combest, who reports she and her assistants spend up to 12 hours on their feet serving shoppers... "And if you're not prepared, it can be fierce..."

ORANGE COUNTY PROJECT

Utility Line Job Funds OK'd

Hopefully, a few more utility poles will be taken from Orange County's major arteries this year, and their lines put underground.

Southern California Edison Co. announced it will allocate $1,051,900 for placement of utility lines underground — in 22 cities, and San Diego Gas and Electric Co. said it will supply $29,410 for similar jobs in two south county cities it serves. Orange County's allocation to help the cause may be $120,000, supervisors indicated.

The project will be studied by the Orange County League of Cities, under a supervisory suggestion for some kind of a priority system.

The league originated a job priority setup for spending gas tax funds with the county—a special committee decides the most-needed highway projects, and the available funds are used on them.

This system allows early work on main arteries, while less-traveled routes are delayed until sufficient funds are available. But the system has worked well, supervisors say, and the same kind of cooperation might be possible on the program of "underground" utility lines.

Orange Co. Official: Urban Renewal Causes Problems

The federal government has caused more problems than it has solved in its urban renewal program, in the opinion of Orange County Supervisor David L. Baker of Garden Grove, only county official on the National Commission on Urban Problems.

Baker issued "a minority report" to the commission findings handed to President Johnson by its chairman, former Sen. Paul Douglas.

Baker said local governments are hard-pressed financially to do much about urban decay. In consequence, they are "eager" to accept any federal plan—and, he said, "they often find that such programs pose additional costs they're unprepared to meet."

Most local governments "look to Washington" for funding because they are unable to meet financial demands, he explained. The result is "frightening decay" in some cities, particularly in the East. "They simply don't have progress there—they're far behind."

Formed in 1968, the National Commission on Urban Problems was to examine building codes, zoning, taxation and construction standards as they relate to urban problems,

ORANGE CO. TO SEEK U.S. FUNDS FOR WATER PROJECT

Orange County is preparing an application for $558,000 in federal funds to help finance a $1.4-million project of building a storm water-retarding basin and a drainage channel at Cypress.

The City of Cypress posted $900,000 to underwrite its share of the project's cost.

Chief Engineer H. George Osborne of the Orange County Flood Control District said plans are being prepared by the county, that bids are to be asked next spring, and that the Housing and Urban Development Department will be asked for the funds.

L.B. Planner Elected President of Southern California Congress

Arnold B. Berg, a member of the Long Beach Planning Commission since 1964, has been elected president of the Southern California Planning Congress.

ARNOLD B. BERG

Berg succeeds Mrs. L. S. Baca, past chairman of the Los Angeles County Regional Planning Commission.

The congress is composed of planning commissioners, staff members and consultants from nearly 100 cities and counties of Southern California.

Cecelia McBride, senior planner in the Long Beach planning department, was elected secretary-treasurer. Dr. Robert C. Gillingham, chairman of the Compton Planning Commission, was elected a vice president.

Berg, who twice has served as chairman of the local Planning Commission, operates several apartment buildings in Long Beach and also the B. & B. Investment Co. of Santa Ana.

He is a past president of the Long Beach Board of Realtors, a vice president for the southern area of the California Real Estate Association, and a state director of the CREA for nine years. He was chairman of the Los Angeles County Council of Real Estate Boards in 1957-58.

Berg is a past president of the Long Beach and Southern Cities Apartment House Association, a past vice president of the National Apartment House Association, and was chairman in 1961 of planning and zoning for the CREA.

He participated in writing a guide on planning and zoning, first published in 1962 by the CREA, and now used as a planning reference guide by realtors.

In 1961, the Long Beach Board of Realtors named him "Realtor of the Year."

Orange Co. Court House Closes Shop

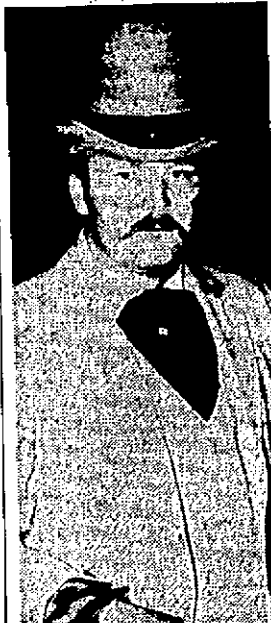

An era ended in Orange County Friday when the 68-year-old county courthouse conducted its last official business.

That doesn't mean there'll be no more trials or hearings in Orange County.

What it does mean is the wheels of justice will roll toward the new, $16-million courts building at Eighth and Flower streets.

The ancient sandstone building in which the county's superior courts were housed from 1900 on was a typically Victorian structure — high-domed ceilings, heavy woodwork, ornately beveled, tall doors topped with transoms and a bench embellished with hand carvings of scrolls surrounding the blindfolded figure of "Justice and Her Scales."

The last official act in the court may have been very similar to its first. Superior Court Judge William C. Speirs heard a burglary case filed against a young Orange County man.

Hall Convicted of 3 Rapes, 7 Other Felonies

Robert Lee Hall, 27, of Santa Ana, Friday was found guilty of 10 felonies — including the rapes of three Orange County women.

He was convicted by a Superior Court jury of the three rapes plus four charges of burglary, two of armed robbery and one of assault on a Westminster police officer.

Hall could face as many as 40 years in prison. Judge Howard Cameron set probation hearing and sentencing for Jan. 2.

Officer Charles Thorpe of the Westminster Police Department captured Hall in the act of burglarizing the policeman's home.

Subsequent investigation indicated that Hall was the nocturnal prowler who terrorized Orange County women.

GARDENING

Garden Clinic

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Q. I hope you can tell me what's wrong with the rhododendron leaves enclosed. I suspect extremely hard water, but don't know how to doctor the plant. It is in a redwood tub, planted in a mixture of one-third peat and two-thirds compost soil. This summer it was under an avocado tree to keep it out of the hot sun. Now it is out where it receives all morning sun. During the rain couple of weeks ago, I placed it under the run-off from the roof and it got well flushed out. The leaves start browning at the tip edges and eventually the whole leaf is dead. Early part of this year I thought the sun was burning it. That is why it was put under the tree, but it hasn't helped. Two or three months ago I fed a light amount of azalea-camellia food. Mrs. William Eric.

A. You're right, the hard water is the main trouble. First be sure the compost-peat mixture is firm. If not, thoroughly firm with fingers. Next, the container should be set on bricks or on prone inch-square stakes. (If you purchased a black fine soil-like texture peat, it is not good, because it has been found to be highly alkaline. Peat should be the sphagnum peat moss.) Now, we can suggest help for your rhododendron. When watering it as it needs it, refill the container three or four times and count it as one-unit drink of water. Watering thusly only when roots are thirsty helps leach the root medium, and you don't water it often. Use one of the "irons" your nurseryman recommends, or one of the liquid soil conditioners that provide an acid action and food too. If you use one of the irons that is diluted in water, apply it at month to six-week intervals. Do it three times. If a liquid soil conditioner is applied, do it twice at monthly intervals. The materials might stain the porch or patio floor, therefore container should be placed on soil when treating the plant.

Q. Please tell me how to divide my bird of paradise, also what part of the year, winter or spring? Rev. L. J. Guinier.

A. Divide bird of paradise about mid-March through late May. Dig up the plant with a large ball of earth. The root-ball length should be at least 18 inches. Lay it on its side. Sharpen a square-shaped shovel, then chop the root ball in half. Chop the two halves into quarters. Smoothly cut any jagged edges of the roots. Don't cut back any of the ropelike roots unless needed. Replant the divided clumps into a prepared soil composed of two parts of organic material and three parts of soil. Mix vitamin b-1 with water and soak down thoroughly. Apply vitamin b-1 to water at weekly intervals five or six times, during normal watering.

Q. Please give me some advice on how to grow azaleas in the yard. I have been told there is one type for planting in the shade and another for sun. Is this true, and if so, how can one know the type he has? Mrs. Ruth Porter.

A. Sun-loving azalea foliage doesn't look much different from the shade-loving ones. The shade-loving azaleas stand up to about half a day of sun; in full sun blossoms tend to sunburn, the leafage may turn a light green color. Sun-loving azaleas grow equally as well in the shade. Check the azalea name tags on the plants. If they don't state "shade" or "sun," check the names with your nurseryman and he'll know which type they are. Most wholesale azalea growers recommend planting azaleas in premoistened peat moss. The sphagnum peat moss should be moist and fluffy texture when you plant. Hole should be at least twice as wide as the width of the root ball, and two to four inches deeper. Thoroughly finger-firm the peat moss under and around the root ball. The root-ball top must be level with the surrounding garden soil. Build up a ring of soil to hold water to soak the roots. Water the plants slowly but thoroughly. Feeding recommendation is lightly once a month throughout the year.

Another important factor in arranging poinsettias is the depth of water in the container. The portion of the stem which was in the alcohol will not absorb water. Therefore, it is vitally important that the unconditioned portion of the stem be in water, otherwise no moisture will reach the stem and bloom.

It still isn't too late to try this method of treating your poinsettia cut flowers if you had poor success last year, but you'll have to hurry, water the plants then strip off the leaves.

BIRD OF PARADISE FLOWER SPIKES Careless Gardeners Sometimes Lop Them Off

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Gardeners who patiently wait and watch the flower spikes of their Bird of Paradise slowly develop into the most strikingly showy flowers also know that the cut blooms correspondingly last longer than many of the other kinds of outdoor shrubs blossoms.

Yet there are gardeners whose patience wears thin and finally they are just about ready to give up on their plant, wondering if it is ever going to bloom.

There are several reasons why Birds of Paradise may not flower. The plants may have been set too deep in the ground, or possibly they didn't get sufficient deep waterings throughout the growing season, or weren't mulched with manure and fed several times.

THE MOST glaring detrimental factor is due to the gardeners thoughtlessly cutting off future flowers in the embryonic stage developing within the hollow area of the leaves near the base of the plant, as they cut off the old leaves close to the ground. Old leaves should be cut just above the hollow leaf stalk area.

Here's what the gardener should do if the mature plant hasn't bloomed for the last four or five years, or maybe longer. Dig soil away from around base of the plant till the topmost ropelike roots are barely uncovered. The roots should be covered by about half-inch layer of soil and firmed.

IF PLANT is too deep, excess soil should be dug away. Build a circular well around the plant to prevent soil from washing in around the base and choking it again. Winter is not the time to dig it up and replant it to proper depth; mid-March is.

Soil must be firm around the plant. Loose soil should be firmed so water slowly percolates throughout the plant roots area and provides sufficient water.

Gardeners who plan to purchase the plants this time of the year should buy blooming plants, because they won't have to wait several years before the plants grow to maturity size to bloom.

The royal Bird of Paradise plants are welcome Christmas gifts, too! They are ideal as container plants for some years.

A SHOWY Christmas season plant that grows as easily as weeds is the bright red flowered Poinsettia, originally from tropical Mexico and Central America.

There are about half a dozen methods of treating the cut blooms so they won't wilt. The executive secretary of the American Poinsettia Society recommends the following: A month before you cut the flowers water the plant well. Strip the leaves from the stems. Stripping does two things. It allows nature to heal the wounds on the stem and it stimulates the growth of the bloom.

The day before the blossoms are to be used, take to the garden a quart can in which you have poured rubbing alcohol to a depth of two inches. Do not add water, use just the two inches of alcohol. As the stems are cut, place them immediately in the alcohol. The quart can allows the blossoms to be placed in the alcohol without crowding.

THE LEAST break in the stem or bracts will cause the bloom to wilt. Great care should be taken not to crowd them. If a small break appears, use clear nail polish to stop the "bleeding." Cotton soaked in alcohol and wrapped around a break in the stem stops the flow of white sap.

Leave the cut stems in the alcohol for 8 to 10 minutes, then immerse blossoms and stems in deep cool water. This may be from half-hour to overnight.

Area Churches Present Rich Advent Music Fare

Long Beach-area churches will resound to the soaring and joyous music of the Christmas season on the third Sunday of Advent.

Prominent in the selections to be heard will be the extensive Christmas portion of Handel's 200-year-old master work, "The Messiah," probably the most performed work ever written about the advent of Jesus. It is traditionally concluded by the stirring Hallelujah Chorus.

A major presentation of the work will be offered at 4 p.m. in Covenant Presbyterian, Third and Atlantic. The church's Cathedral Choir will be augmented by other outstanding singers of the area, and will be accompanied by a large professional orchestra, made possible by a grant from the Recording Industries Trust Fund of the American Federation of Musicians Local 353.

Performances of the "Messiah" may also be heard Sunday 7:30 p.m. at Lakewood 1st Presbyterian, 3955 Studebaker Road, with the Sanctuary Choir and Chamber Orchestra, and at the same hour at Bixby Knolls Christian Church, 1240 E. Carson St., along with other traditional and contemporary Christmas numbers.

The "Music of Christmas," featuring the Vocal Arts Ensemble, will be heard at 7:30 p.m. in First Congregational, Third and Cedar. John Barry, organist and choirmaster of St. Luke's Episcopal, will accompany the 20-voice ensemble in a performance of the Magnificat by Antonio Vivaldi and will also play a group of solos by Brahms, Dahn and Bach.

INDEPENDENT, PRESS-TELEGRAM—B-5
Long Beach, Calif., Sat., Dec. 14, 1968

The ensemble is becoming well known for its authentic interpretations of the music of the Renaissance, baroque and contemporary periods.

First Methodist, at Fifth and Pacific, will present its Christmas Musicals at 4 p.m. featuring the Youth, Crusader and Carol, Layfield and Chapel Handbell Choirs. Following the program, the Youth Fellowship, including the Youth Choir, will go caroling through the city.

"Love Transcending," a cantata by John W. Peterson rated high on the list of those telling the ageless story, will be performed Sunday at 7 p.m. at Palo Verde Avenue Christian, 2501 Palo Verde Ave. The same work will be offered by the combined choirs of Norwalk, 11908 E. Orange St. Participating are the choirs of Norwalk's Evangelical United Brethren Methodist, Covenant United Presbyterian, First Baptist and First Presbyterian.

"The Story of Christmas," a cantata, will feature an evening of music Sunday 7 p.m. at University Baptist, 3434 Chatwin Ave.

The Lutheran Chorale will appear in concert 8 p.m. tonight at St. Luke's Lutheran, 13552 Goldenwest St., Westminster.

Interracial Visit

The junior high church school youngsters of St. John's Community Presbyterian Church, in line with their studies on the racial situation, will visit Grant Chapel AME Church Sunday, participating in the school and services. It is Youth Sunday at the Grant church, located at 1129 Alamitos Ave.

Birth Control Edict '68's Top Religion Story

Set Off Catholic Ferment; Methodists, Church Youth, L.B. Council Made News

By LES RODNEY

Ferment within the Roman Catholic Church made the biggest religious news of 1968.

Pope Paul's eagerly awaited pronouncement on birth control dismayed many Catholics by reaffirming the church's opposition to all artificial methods of limiting conception. The uncompromising stand set off shock waves which will be reverberating for some time.

Some European hierarchs, while not opposing the encyclical head on, made clear that they would honor the right of conscience of Catholic couples on the matter. A poll of Netherlands Catholics found only 20 per cent agreeing with the pope.

IN THIS country, the bishops stood with the Vatican, but unprecedented disagreement erupted among parish priests, theologians and the laity. The disciplining of 52 priests in the Washington, D.C. area by Patrick Cardinal O'Boyle was symptomatic.

A Gallup poll found 52 per cent of American Catholics respectfully disagreeing with the encyclical. A poll surveying U.S. parish priests — a random

ELB Church Now Wesley Methodist

East Long Beach Methodist Church, at 1100 Freeman Ave., has changed its name to Wesley United Methodist Church, reports Rev. Ansel H. Arnold, pastor.

Among reasons — the name had lost geographical significance, the word "United" had to be added anyhow, since the EUB merger.

Orange County Women Hit 'Crybaby' Priests

"If these crybaby priests are unable or unwilling to accept the discipline and authority of this divine institution, then perhaps these modern day Judases would consider founding their own 'democratic' institution instead of trying to prostitute the Catholic Church."

So say three Orange County members of the National Federation of Laymen Inc., a conservative organization, who attended the recent meeting of the bishops in Washington.

What is the
LAKEWOOD VILLAGE COMMUNITY CHURCH?
4918 Centralia, One Blk. No. of City College

The Lakewood Village Community Church is an independent congregation composed of those who have come together from more than fifty different denominational backgrounds. Our sense of fellowship is based on a profound respect for differing viewpoints. Essentially we ask only, "Does your heart bear witness to the truth of Christ, if so give us your hand."

Many people tell us that our church seems like the church back home. Sometimes couples who have come from differing denominational backgrounds tell us that each felt "at home" when they came to our church. If you are new in the community you might discover our church to be peculiarly suited to your needs. If you wish to visit, you will be warmly welcomed. Services at 8 A.M., 9:30 A.M. and 11 A.M.

of the early Christians. Taking care of that was the growing preponderance of habitual drug users, totally demoralized sad sacks, cynical exploiters and hardened criminals over the dewey-eyed "love" innocents.

The very different course of passionate participation rather than useless dropping out was seen at Uppsala, Sweden. Young Christians played a vital, creative role at the World Council of Churches meeting as hundreds of college age youngsters from all over the world kept the debates going, the issues hot and the newsletters flowing for 20 days.

On the American ecumenical scene, though no single event could be pinpointed to prove it, the steam seemed to go out of the drive for early structural unity of nine Protestant denominations, with the growing feeling that this had to evolve more naturally from the bottom up, with local examples of united purpose.

Most dramatic was the "first ever" opening of St. Mark's church in Kansas City, serving Episcopalians, Presbyterians, United Church of Christ and Roman Catholics. Each of the four denominations holds its own separate service on Sunday, but in all other activities — school, community work in the interracial area, Bible study, youth work, social groups, mission, etc. — the church functions as a single unit. A report one year hence should be interesting indeed.

On the local scene, Long Beach had its own ecumenical pioneering. Nineteen East Side churches and synagogues cooperated in the distribution of 30,000 copies of a brochure inviting people to a house of worship of their choice, and describing those available. The cooperators included — and try to imagine this Without meaning to slight the many good works in the far-flung Long Beach area, if one were limited to a single "well done" for 1968 it would almost have to go to 26 teen-agers from Los Altos Methodist Church who devoted six weeks of their precious summer vacation children if the central district, painstakingly tutoring them, and big-brothering and big-sistering them on educational and fun excursions.

It was an exceptional answer to the question "What can we do?"

Hanukkah Candles Seen Flickering Low in Many Lands

Long Beach, Calif., Sat., Dec. 14, 1968

(The following comments on Hanukkah, 1968, which begins at sundown Sunday, were prepared at our request by Rabbi Yosef Miller of Temple Beth Shalom.)

By RABBI YOSEF MILLER

Monday marks the first of the eight days of Hanukkah, which always occurs on the 25th day of the Hebrew month of Kislev. Eight candles are lit, because, according to tradition, a little jar with enough oil for one day, miraculously supplied light for eight days — long enough for Judah Maccabee to cleanse and rededicate the Temple in Jerusalem, which had been defiled by the Syrians.

In this first battle for religious freedom, the Maccabees defeated the Syrian hosts who had tried to convert the Jews of ancient Israel to the Greek culture — forbidding them to observe the Sabbath, to study the Torah and follow its precepts and to bring their sons into the covenant of Abraham.

"Ness Gadol Hayah

Sham" — "A great miracle happened there" — is one of the slogans of Hanukkah. But the real miracle was "Rabim h'yad me-atim" — "The defeat of the many at the hands of the few," and the preservation of Judaism. There is a question as to the historicity of the miracle of the legend of the lights; but there is no question of the miracle of Jewish survival.

From the year 167 B.C. — the year of the rededication of the Temple by the victorious Maccabees — the Jewish people has survived as an identifiable people, with the same language, the same religious tradition, the same Hebrew Bible and today — once again in the same land. Had Judaism succumbed to the Greek culture of the Syrians, could the Christ have been born into the tradition of Israel 167 years later?

Today, the Hanukkah candles flicker low in most countries where Jews have lived for centuries. Life is precarious and the light threatens to go out altogether in Russia — where 3 million Jews are permitted almost no manifestation of Jewish life — no religious schools, no Bar Mitzvah, no Hanukkah; in Poland, Germany, and other European countries, where even the tiny remnant of pre-Hitler centers of Jewish life, culture and learning carry on a tenuous existence and can't decide whether to stay or flee; in Syria, Iraq and the North-African Arab world, where fragments of once proud and productive Jewish communities are now virtual prisoners or, as in the case of Egypt, where the remaining Jews are actually imprisoned — facing, God knows what fate.

Only in Israel and America — lands of freedom and light — do the candles of Hanukkah burn in hope and inspiration. In Israel Hanukkah is celebrated as the Festival of Peace, and its peoples yearn for the fulfillment of its ancient message, as told by the Prophet Zechariah when he beheld the vision of the golden candlestick and exclaimed, "Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord of hosts."

CONFIDENT LIVING What Is There to Make Life Good?

By NORMAN VINCENT
PEALE

After making an enthusiastic speech about how really exciting life is, I was approached by a visibly far-but member of the younger generation. "Don't make me laugh," he griped. "What is there to make life good?"

He did not give me a chance to reply; he turned and walked away rapidly. But his question lingered. Just what is there to make life good?

The answer is very clear: There is plenty of good in life for those who are able to see it and take it. What this world is to you or to me and through us to others depends very largely upon our attitude — upon the cast of mind we have. It depends upon the spirit in which we approach the problems and opportunities of human existence.

Recently I was in Halifax, Nova Scotia, to give a talk to an audience made up of sales people, and the general public also. To get to the hall I hailed a taxicab and told the driver, "St. Patrick's Auditorium."

Positive Results. I really go for that positive thinking. "I don't think you need it," I replied. "You and your wife are a hard-working couple and I admire you."

"Yes," he said, "But don't be sorry for us. We are having a good time. We like it. This is a wonderful world and this is a terrific time to be living. My father always taught me to live right and have a cheerful attitude and be a positive thinker. My wife and I — we're going to do something with our lives. We just know we are."

I told him about my far-out friend who growled about nothing good in life. The young man shook his head. "You know, I feel sorry for those guys. They are so mad at everybody and mad at themselves that they've got all mixed up. Someone should straighten them out."

How refreshing it was to encounter a young person with such a vital conception of what life is like!

Of course any wide-awake individual living today is only too painfully aware that not everything in this present-day world of ours is all sweetness and light. We have ugly facts to deal with, we are faced with disturbing trends, we are involved in perplexing situations. But one of the secrets of successful living is to balance one aspect of experience against another and keep our perspective.

AS WE started off, the driver, a clean-cut looking young fellow said: "There's an author from New York going to speak out there tonight."

"That's right," I answered.

"I would go to the meeting," he continued, "But I can't. You see, I go to college during the day — Dalhousie University — and at night I drive this cab. My wife would like to go too, but she is a nurse and she can't be off tonight."

"Well, you've got the speaker right here in your taxi."

"What do you know," he said in surprise. "How about giving me a run-down on your speech, 'Why Positive Thinkers Get

Offbeat Evangelists Meet Courtesy at L.B. Church, But Disrupt Service

Given a gracious reception though they interrupted a Sunday sermon, a group of self-styled youthful evangelists who live at 1005 Locust St. returned last week to Grace Methodist Church and again discourteously disrupted the worship hour, it was reported by members of the congregation at Third Street and Junipero Avenues.

On the first Sunday, a member of the roughly dressed group stood up in church during the sermon by Rev. Stanley Brown, the pastor, and started to address the congregation. Rev. Brown halted his sermon and invited the young man, who later identified himself as George Laphoska of the Locust Street address, to say what he felt he had to say.

The youth launched into what was an essentially an extreme fundamentalist outburst, saying "repent, get back to the Bible... get back to the belief in God before you burn in hell for your stupidity in leaving (sic) a bad shepherd lead you to hell. I tell all you people, beware... He's coming back and he's going to get you and take you to hell if you don't repent..."

His followers called out encouragingly to him while he spoke. They have admittedly disrupted services in other area churches and synagogues, sometimes being physically ejected.

Among remarks in the tirade were several which indicated that they oppose all church activities which involve the church with the community. "I tell you repent, repent of your stupid social meetings," was one, and "Find out about Jesus, the one who wasn't for social reforms..."

When Laphoska finished, Rev. Brown said "Thank you, brother," and offered an interpretation of what he had been saying. Members of the congregation say he expressed a charitable view of the youth's evangelistic intentions.

"The congregation was gracious and many offered to speak with the visitors afterward in friendly fashion," says the pastor. "I was proud of them."

When the "evangelists" pulled a repeat performance last Sunday, patience ran a little thinner, though again mature tolerance was shown by pastor and congregation alike.

"The first time," relates Rev. Brown, "I gave them the benefit of the doubt. If they feel a mission, feel that the Lord told them this... But this time there was clearly no message, just rudeness, the shouting of 'liar,' and I began to feel maybe they are not so sincere."

"I came down into the church, put my hand on his arm and stopped him quietly. I said if you want a Christian dialogue, we'll set one up on a Sunday night in the church, you come down and we'll all discuss things. Instead he went into a tirade about his parents ramming Santa Claus down his throat, thunder and lightning..."

When the organist went into the closing hymn, the congregation, Rev. Brown smiled, "really sang it, I never heard it sung so great."

There were knots of discussion with the disrupters outside the church, sometimes a little heated, but there was never any physical bouncing or force (At the large Garden Grove Community Church, another similar group disrupted services and police were called to eject them.)

"I suppose this is a phenomenon of our times," mused Rev. Brown. "though this was surprising. You expect such things from the left wing

Something New in Commercials

By GEORGE ERES
TV-Radio Editor

There is an Alice in Wonderland flavor to the disposition of the dispute about cigarette commercials on TV.

Apparently it has been settled through a compromise, under which TV stations air anti-smoking commercials on a 3-1 ratio — three paid cigarette company commercials rate one anticigarette commercial free.

Well, like all things, not exactly free. Cigarette advertisement is a major source of TV revenue and so the cigarette manufacturers can get nervous in digestion whenever they see an antismoke ad because they are in effect paying for propaganda against themselves. Of course, it's the smokers themselves who are paying for their sins, in the final analysis, since they pay for the cigarettes.

FURTHER, the smoker's sins come home to roost when he turns on TV and sees those commercials warning him that he's killing himself by smoking. You can see the fix he's in. He sees the commercials telling him that "the good guys" all smoke cigarettes. Then he sees a commercial showing him that the "good guys" don't smoke.

He's in one heck of a bind. The TV viewer is just not prepared for this sort of a tussle over his mind. Politics, yes. That's an acceptable subject for two-sided disputes. Various public issues; he's prepared for that, too. But this is the first time that a product has been sold and unsold on TV at the same time — or almost the same time.

WHAT'S HAPPENED is that the simple formula — "This is John. John runs. See John run" — has been shaken up.

There have been competing claims of soap manufacturers, for example, that Brand X gets out tattle tale gray better than Brand Y. But never before on TV has a commercial been aired which says both Brands X and Y destroy the fabric.

You see what this means? Nonsmokers will have to make up their minds to smoke or not to smoke on the basis of which Madison Ave. ad agency is doing the best job. They'll be torn between smoking and stopping and may reach for a beer or glass of wine, both of which now are advertised without TV ads admonishing that drink is the road to ruin.

And that suggests some further possible headaches. Just suppose the Prohibition Party, people decide to start calling on the networks and the FCC for equal time.

After all, kids see those commercials for beer and wine on TV. Do you want them to grow up to be drunks?

You may see the day when there will be pretty

 HARBOR CHEVROLET

Bill Piazza tells about the golfer who took off on the first hole and sliced badly, his ball landing into the trees and out of sight. He made no move to look for it, explaining that since his name was on it, the finder would probably turn it in.

When his foursome finished, he asked at the pro-shop if they had a ball with the name of Frank Smith on it. The optimistic golfer informed that his ball was in the hands of the police because when it landed in the trees, it bounced off a limb, flew over the fence and broke the windshield of a passing bus! The bus driver, trying to dodge the flying glass, lost control and crashed into a parked car, killing 3 people!!!

"What, oh what will I do now???", wailed the distraught duffer, whereupon the pro answered, "Well... you might try changing your back-swing!!!"

INGLEWOOD POLICE THREAT Forum Boxing Ban?

Boxing matches at the $16 million Forum may be banned as an aftermath of last Friday night's riot which followed a world championship bantamweight bout.

Police chief William Kennedy said Friday, "I have to issue permits for boxing, and we'll take a long look at the situation before issuing any more."

An estimated 500 fans of Mexico's Chucho Castillo rioted inside and outside the arena after he lost a split 15-round decision to Australia's Lionel Rose.

Chief Kennedy said discussions will be held by city officials next week to determine the future course of action.

The Forum is located in Inglewood.

When the riot started, all available Inglewood police were called out, plus help from neighboring Hawthorne, the Los Angeles County Sheriff's Department and the California Highway Patrol.

"We had 200 officers in the area attempting to control the situation," Chief Kennedy said. "The rioters moved out into the fog where no one could see them and into our residential and business areas."

"A boxing crowd is different from that attending other types of sports events, a more explosive type."

Fires were set in Forum seats, bottles were thrown from the stands and fights broke out during the melee. In the parking lot, expensive cars were damaged. Inglewood Fire Department units were also called out.

"That's pretty expensive for the community," commented Kennedy. Damage at the Forum was estimated at $50,000. About 20 spectators were treated for injuries and four police officers also were hurt.

George Parnassus, who promoted the Rose-Castillo bout, has announced another Mexican bantamweight, Ruben Olivares, would fight at the Forum against Won Suk Ye of Korea on Jan. 24.

"Before that, we will have to take the long look at the situation," said Kennedy.

Lakers Hustle All the Way but Finish Second to Hawks

By DOUG JEVES
Staff Writer

On a night the Lakers ran and hustled as best they know how, the Atlanta Hawks showed why they still must be rated as a contender to regain their Western Division crown.

Led by Lou Hudson, Zelmo Beaty and Don Ohl, who combined for 77 points, the defensive-conscious Hawks stymied the Lakers down the stretch Friday night to score a 105-103 victory before 8,164 fans at the Forum.

The Lakers led 96-94 with 3:21 left, but the Hawks ran off nine consecutive points and then watched as the Lakers scored seven points in the closing seconds to make the final tally look like a down-to-the-wire finish, which it wasn't.

Wilt Chamberlain, on trial to go full tilt every minute, did exactly that and tried valiantly to lead a Laker fast-break that just doesn't contain the personnel to be consistently good.

Coach Bill van Breda Kolf felt his athletes were trying too hard to impress in light of the recent adverse publicity centering around Chamberlain.

"We wanted to win very badly tonight," said VBK, who didn't see the end of the game as rookie referee Charlie Camuso handed him his second technical foul, an automatic ejection, with 1:16 remaining.

Van Breda Kolf, slapped with a $250 fine last year for bad-mouthing officials, refused to blast Camuso, although the newcomer was constantly booed by the fans for his judgment calls.

Chamberlain, when asked about the game, said wryly, "Did you see the refereeing tonight?" That was all Wilt would say, but he got his message across.

The Lakers had every opportunity to whip the second-place Hawks, who now trail by four games, but they couldn't buy a basket in the final 6½ minutes.

Keith Erickson hit a jumper at 6:30, but then came a drought which saw the Lakers make only 1 of 11 field goal tries until Jerry West's meaningless lay-in with 18 seconds left.

When the Hawks were scoring their nine points in a row, the Lakers missed eight fielders, three by Johnny Egan, two by Elgin Baylor and Mel Counts and one by West.

Ohl, who made all 10 of his free throw tries, hit five of them to put the Hawks even at 3:21, then Beaty tossed in a jumper, Ohl added another free throw and Hudson made four points to wrap it up, 103-96, with 0:45 remaining.

Atlanta's defense was outstanding in the closing minutes. Once the Lakers cleared a side for West to drive the hoop, but Beaty came from nowhere to block and control the shot.

One of Baylor's attempts and two of Egan's were more of the desperation variety as Atlanta switched off beautifully and jammed the middle so that Chamberlain couldn't even get one try at the hoop in the final nine minutes.

Chamberlain wound up with 22 points, 19 in the first three quarters. He missed 9 of 15 free throws, including four of five at the crucial time with about five minutes left.

Still, the 7-foot-2 superstar worked hard defensively, grabbed 22 rebounds and made an honest effort to launch the Lakers' fastbreak. The quick-moving Hawks were rarely caught napping, however.

"I think we can win the division," said player-coach Richie Guerin, who stayed on the bench all night. "Basically, this is the first time we've been at full strength all year. We've won four in a row and played great defense in all of them."

The Lakers play in Seattle tonight, then return home to face the Sonics Sunday.

KENTUCKY FINDS NEW RAY OF HOPE

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — John Ray, assistant football coach at Notre Dame, has been appointed head coach at the University of Kentucky, it was announced Friday.

Ray will succeed Charley Bradshaw, who leaves with a record of 25 wins, 41 losses and 4 ties.

Ray, 42, has been an assistant to head football coach Ara Parseghian.

Ray's selection came as a surprise to most because speculation in recent days had centered on either Homer Rice, head coach at the University of Cincinnati, or Arizona State University coach Frank Kush.

Ray became head coach at John Carroll University in 1959 and compiled a record of 23 wins against six defeats in five years before going to Notre Dame.

Anchors Aweigh! Huge Field Vies in Christmas Regatta

By ALLEN WOLFE

Marine Stadium will strike up a three-hour rendition of "Row, Row, Row Your Boat" when it hosts the first Long Beach Christmas Sprint Regatta today.

The 18-race program, which features some of the nation's top collegiate oar and scull teams, is offered free to the public, and gets under way at 9 a.m. The one-day affair winds up at noon with the premiere event, the heavy-weight eight-oared shells.

The eight-oared final will feature teams representing Cal State Long Beach, Orange Coast College, San Diego State and two teams to be formed from among other colleges represented at the regatta, including a combined Loyola-UCLA boat.

John Van Blom, John Nunn and Tom McKibbin, all members of the U.S. Olympic team and the Long Beach Rowing Assn., will compete.

Van Blom will pair with fellow Cal State Long Beach student Mark Hugh in the double sculls at 9:40. Then the 20-year-old Los Alamitos resident will join Nunn, McKibbin and Reed Adler in the heavy-weight fours-without-coxswain at 11:10.

Girl-watcher's attention will center on 16 Cal State Long Beach lovelies, who will form two teams in a unique eight-oared shell race.

The young ladies are members of the Cal State Shell and Oar girls auxiliary, who are trying to promote the growth of other all-girl teams at colleges and universities in the Southland.

All competition will consist of 820-meter sprints finishing opposite the Marine Stadium Boat House race headquarters.

El Rancho, St. Paul Battle to 20-20 Tie in CIF Finals

By KEN PIVERNETZ
Staff Writer

Perhaps it was only fitting that Friday night's football championship game between Pico Rivera and Santa Fe Springs wound up in a 20-20 tie.

That's what happened after Moore League champion El Rancho and the Angelus League's No. 1 team, St. Paul, had battled 48 minutes before 21,010 fans at the Coliseum for the CIF AAAA high school title.

The schools are only three miles apart — and for the next year there will be plenty of arguments as to who had the best team.

But the record will show they're co-champions, and rightfully so.

It was the first tie since Mickey Flynn and Randy Meadows staged their classic duel that involved Anaheim and Downey 12 years ago. That game ended 13-all.

The Dons had to come back from the edge of defeat to tie the score and they had a chance to win it all.

St. Paul was sitting on a 20-14 lead with 2:03 left when it was forced to punt from its own 45.

Greg Bailey gathered the ball in on his own 20 and didn't stop running until he had crossed St. Paul's goal line.

It was a smart run by Bailey, who waited for his blocks to develop, then made the most of them. Once he passed midfield, Bailey outraced two St. Paul defenders.

The El Rancho hero could have been placekicker Dan Almanza, but his kick was wide to the right.

El Rancho wasn't through by any means, getting the ball for one more shot with 52 seconds showing.

It was a frantic finish as Randy Drake moved the Dons from their own 32 to the St. Paul five. Drake had run 16 and 6 yards to put the ball on the 36 with 22 seconds showing. He then hit Steve Nieto over the middle for 19 yards and another first down on the 17.

Drake's next two passes were incomplete. With three seconds to go he scrambled before being dragged down on the five as the game ended.

St. Paul had gone ahead early in the final quarter after recovering an El Rancho fumble on a kick-off following the Swords-men's second score.

It took St. Paul nine plays to score from 36 yards out, with Charlie Martinez bucking over from the three to make it 20-14, with 8:13 to go.

It's Peaceful in Pro Golf

NEW YORK (AP) — The Professional Golfers Assn. and the break-away touring pros hammered out a settlement of their long-standing dispute Friday with the agreement centering around a new tournament policy board.

The agreement also calls for creation of a tournament players division within the PGA.

The settlement was announced in a joint statement by Leo Fraser, president of the PGA, and Gardner Dickinson, head of the American Professional Golfers, the players group.

"I wouldn't call it a victory for the APG," said Sam Gates, the group's attorney. "We didn't go into this looking for a victory. We sought agreement by eliminating the sources of the disagreement."

"This has been accomplished by putting full authority for the conduct of the tour in the hands of the tournament policy board."

The tournament policy board will appoint a tournament director "to carry out its policies, rules, and regulations," the statement said.

"He will be a man of proven experience as an executive and administrator and one who enjoys the confidence of the PGA, the tournament players and the golfing public."

No names were mentioned.

"He will have a wide range of authority," the statement said, "including selection and supervision of the tournament field staff, administration of financial matters; disciplinary control of the players... negotiations with sponsors, networks, etc., for all contracts and overall direction of the day-to-day operation of the program."

"It constitutes a restructuring of the entire tournament program. In effect, it's a new organization for tournament golf."

Under the terms of the agreement, the tournament policy board will have complete and absolute control of the tour. It will consist of three private citizens, the three officers of the PGA and four players elected by the touring pros.

Gates and William D. Rogers, attorney for the PGA and secretary of state designate, will be nonvoting advisory members of the board.

The announcement by Fraser and Dickinson said the two groups "have reached an amicable agreement in our common efforts to achieve an improved and durable structure for professional tournament golf."

49er Goals: Victory, National Recognition

By JIM MCCORMACK
Staff Writer

TULSA, Okla. — To Cal State Long Beach basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian, the toughest game is always the next one.

The 49er mentor savored Thursday night's 92-75 scalping of Oklahoma City University for nearly an hour before he began thinking about tonight's opponent, Tulsa University's unbeaten Golden Hurricane.

"If we can get this one," Tarkanian session at Tulsa Fairgrounds Fairgrounds, session at Tulsa Fairgrounds Pavilion, "then our people will have something to talk about."

"Not many teams have come into Oklahoma and beat these two clubs. This would get us some national recognition and help us improve our schedule next year."

"We have to prove ourselves before good teams are going to play us. If we can win this one and go on and have a good year, it will help us give our program a good image."

For a day, at least, the 49ers have the reputation that Tarkanian is seeking to establish.

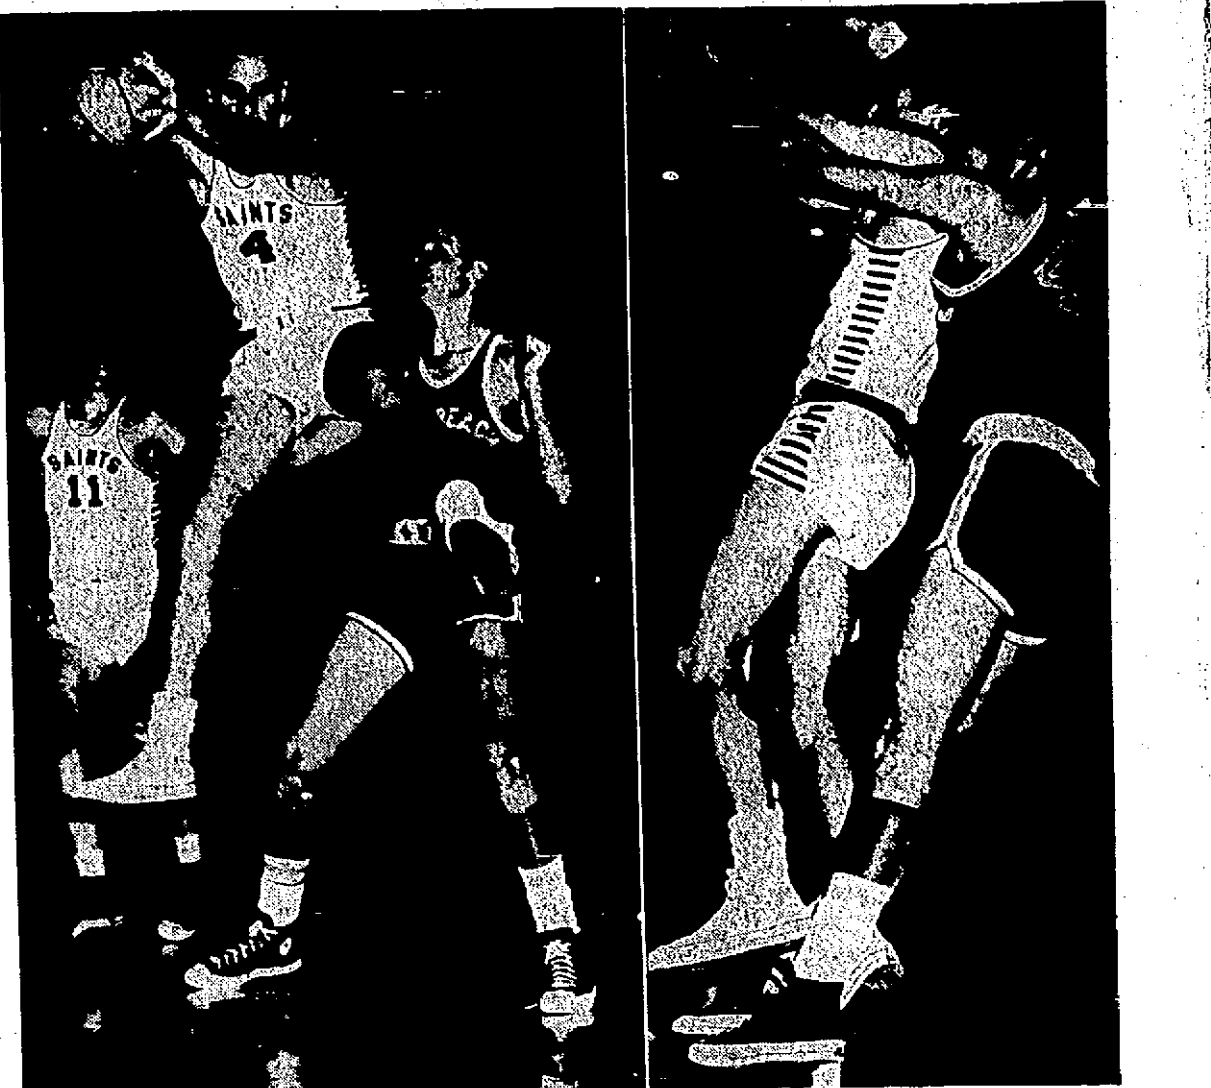

One of the Tulsa newspapers reports the 49ers are "as good as any team in the nation."

That remains to be seen. The Golden Hurricane also is unbeaten in five games, and is considered one of the prime title contenders in the Missouri Valley Conference, perhaps the best basketball league, from top to bottom, in the nation.

Tulsa, which beat Cal State Fullerton 93-84 Thursday night, is led by all-America candidate Bobby Smith, who is averaging 25 points a game.

"They have super players," Tarkanian reports. "Smith, Larry Cheatham and Rob Washington are all great. They're going to be a much better team than Oklahoma City."

Tarkanian will start the same athletes who have led the 49ers to five wins in a row — Art Montgomery and Sam Robinson at forwards, Dick Nelson at center, and Shawn Johnson and Ray Gritten at guard.

It's on Ice for Shelley

Kenneth Shelley of Paramount took the lead Friday over Roger Bass in the first half of the senior men's figure skating competition during the Pacific Coast Championships.

Shelley, 18, had only six points deducted from his compulsory totals and will be a heavy favorite when freestyle skating begins today. Shelley was junior men's Pacific Coast champion last year.

Bass, also of Paramount, had nine points deducted, and Brad Hislop, Seattle, was third with 15.

In the junior ladies competition, Diane Garcia of Los Angeles, took a slim lead over Christy Ito, Portland, Ore., and Julia Jean Johnson, Paramount.

Patricia Shelley, Kenneth's sister, led in intermediate ladies competition over Susan Moody, Seattle, and Dorian Shields, Anaheim.

Deacon Has Score to Settle With 'Talkative' Colt Star

By AL LARSON
Staff Writer

Although Sunday's game won't mean much in won-lost since the Colts already have clinched the division championship, there's a personal feud to be settled before the sell-out crowd of 75,000 at the Coliseum.

Deacon Jones and Baltimore's offensive tackle Sam Ball have been growling at each other from a distance, and they'll meet head-to-head across the line of scrimmage. Ball was given a game ball by his teammates when the Colts beat the Rams, 27-10, in Baltimore Oct. 27 to launch a seven-game win streak.

After the Bears knocked the Rams out of the title running last Sunday, Ball was quoted as saying: "Time finally ran out. The Rams have been squeaking past teams with wins that weren't really sound."

In the war of words, Jones retorted: "I see where Ball has been doing quite a bit of talking lately. I've got some articles that say how he handled me when we met the last time in Baltimore. I'd like to have him one-on-one this Sunday and we'll see if he really earned that game ball of his."

Coach Don Shula will start the same 22 regulars who faced Green Bay last Saturday when the chase still was hot. "We know the Rams will be ready and we've got to keep our momentum going," says Shula.

Rams' coach George Allen observed: "We will play this one, as if the championship depended on it." The Rams will be in near top shape. Bernie Casey, who sustained a leg injury a month ago when the 49ers tied the Rams, will start at flanker.

The Rams activated rookie linebacker Dean Halverson, 6-2, 220, to replace Tony Guillory, who underwent knee surgery Friday. Halverson was a 13th draft choice from Washington.

Guillory became the 12th player to require an operation this season.

Center George Burman underwent his second knee operation since the season began last week.

Last year the Rams gave up 196 points, low in the league, and won the Coastal title. This year they've allowed 172 points on a 10-2-1 season.

With Earl Morrall filling in at quarterback for the injured John Unitas, the 1968 Colts have not suffered measurably on offense. They have scored 374 points while the Rams have 288. A year ago the Rams led the NFL with 396 points.

Odds makers rate the Colts three point favorites. More often than not the Rams are favored at home, since they have won 15 of 20 home games with one tie during the Allen regime.

With the Coastal title wrapped up in their 12-1-0 season, the Colts hope to hold the Rams to no more than 23 points. This would give them a 14-game NFL record of yielding the fewest number of points. In 13 games, the Colts have allowed only 120. The record is 144 by the 1963 Chicago Bears, whose defensive coach that year was Allen.

No NFL team has won 13 games since the 1962 Green Bay Packers finished 13-1.

Freak Plays: Leroy Kelly's Nightmare

CLEVELAND (NEA) — Somebody mentioned Gale Sayers, and Leroy Kelly's smile vanished.

"What a tragedy," said the National Football League's leading rusher, almost inaudibly. "One freak play has put in jeopardy the career of one of the finest running backs who ever lived. Doctors say he'll recover, but who knows how something like that will affect him mentally?"

Leroy Kelly doesn't like to talk about injuries.

"None of the lucky ones do."

For five years he has tantalized opposing defenses and escaped unhurt. He has had his share of muscle pulls, slight sprains and purple bruises, but never has he been completely immobilized with an injury as severe as Sayers'.

The thought of one, he admits, is frightening.

"Sometimes I lay in bed at night and think about such things," he says. "I don't worry about regular contact. I fear the freak plays. The plays that shouldn't happen, but do. They ruin people. Most of the serious injuries happen in freak situations. It's a fact."

Kelly says the specter of injury doesn't affect his play, although he's the prime target of every defense the Cleveland Browns face.

"I try to stay in the best shape possible," he said with a trace of smile that revealed an abbreviated goatee under his lower lip. "I don't do anything extra to avoid being hurt. I just do the regular exercises. I try to stay relaxed, though. Nice and loose. When I get hit, I like to roll with the impact."

Leroy Kelly put a full Windsor knot in his canary yellow silk tie and reached for a double-breasted brown vest. His affluence is advertised in the clothes he wears — monogrammed shirts, single-button suit coats with English lapels, undershirts and shorts of black silk.

At 27, he has filled the shoes of Jim Brown in the Cleveland attack more adequately than anyone expected (some veterans will tell you he has surpassed Brown as an all-round running back and team player already).

"Luck," says Leroy Kelly, "also played its part. There have been times the last few years when I've had heck scared out of me by opposing teams. Times I've been belted from the blind side and I've gone down with my knees and ankle twisting in all directions. There were times when I thought I'd never be able to get up. But, luckily, I did.

"I've ran across only a couple of cheapshot artists who try to put me out of a game. Most of the defenses will hit hard in hopes of intimidating a running back and make him worry about the next time he has to go through the same hole. But very few try deliberately to hurt a running back."

Trojan Quintet Tests Arizona State Tonight

By LOEL SCHRADER

Brothers will be featured in both games of tonight's basketball double-header at the L.A. Sports Arena.

Joe Mackey, 6-6 sharpshooter from Scottsdale, Ariz., will lead USC's powerful freshman team against Hancock JC in a 5:45 preliminary.

In the 8 o'clock main event, the Trojan varsity will try to contain Arizona State's Jeff Mackey, also 6-6 and an excellent outside shooter.

USC's varsity will be seeking its third victory in five games after sweeping last weekend's games with Loyola and Houston.

Arizona State is 1-2, with a victory over Whittier College and losses to Colorado and Kent State of Ohio.

"We've been practicing well and I'm hoping we can maintain the level of our performances last week," said USC coach Bob Boyd Friday.

Boyd plans to open with the same combination that notched the two wins — Ernie Powell and Bob Clemon at forwards, Ron Taylor at center, and Mack Calvin and Vince Mannino at guards.

Colorado is the only common foe for the Trojans and Arizona State. The Buffs beat USC, 80-60, and whipped Arizona State, 112-81.

Vikings Hunt Mulligan's Leprechauns in Riverside

By DAVE DANIEL

Rex Hughes takes his Long Beach City College basketball aggregation on its first leprechaun hunt tonight by hitting the forest road down by the Riverside.

Hughes and his crew will be after Riverside City College coach Irish Bill Mulligan, the former Poly High coach who is considered one of the best in the business on any level. Tip-off is at 8.

When Mulligan begins to work his impish Irish magic on five basketball players, be they good or bad, the result is the same — a winning team. That means Riverside's school nickname is a good one — the Tigers.

Hughes still is searching for a solid starting line-up and gladly would trade any pot o'gold for one. Tonight's starting five is the third set in three games.

The Vikings are 5-1 on the year and on a short two-game win streak, picking up a 60-55 victory over Fullerton Wednesday night. The five-point margin was the smallest of the year for the Vikings, although Hughes was more pleased with the team's performance than in any other game so far.

But stiff competition is expected tonight from the Tigers, who lack over-all height, but who possess quickness and good shooting ability.

Leading the Riverside offense is 6-6 forward Lon Vanderpool, the top returnee from last year's 20-11 team. He was the third leading scorer on the team and the second-best rebounder.

Joining him is 6-7 freshman Dave Strother, a 23-year-old strongman who is an excellent rebounder.

The game is the final one for the Vikings before they head north next to defend their championship in the Foothill North-South Christmas Classic in Los Altos Hills.

Nation's Football Bowl Derby Begins to Unfold

United Press International

College football's post-season bowl game derby begins to unfold today with seven games packed into a coast-to-coast schedule which includes the University of Mississippi's 12th consecutive major bowl appearance.

Ole Miss and Virginia Tech tangle at Memphis, Tenn., in the Liberty Bowl — a game rated a tossup.

Six other bowl games dot the schedule of post-season action which continues for the next four weeks.

At Montgomery, Ala., Texas A&I guns for its second NAIA small college championship by meeting Troy State of Alabama in the 13th annual Champion Bowl.

Four NCAA college division championships will also be decided. In an indoor battle dubbed the Boardwalk Bowl, Indiana of Pennsylvania meets Delaware in the Atlantic City Convention Hall; Fresno State and Humboldt State tangle in the Camellia Bowl at Sacramento for the far west title; Akron and Louisiana Tech clash at Murfreesboro, Tenn., in the Grantland Rice Bowl, and powerful North Dakota State meets Arkansas State at Arlington, Tex., in the Pecan Bowl.

In addition there's the junior college El Toro Bowl at Yuma, Ariz., pitting Arizona Western against Lees-McRae of North Carolina.

Virginia Tech, making its second appearance in the Liberty Bowl, will be out to avenge a 1966 loss to Miami. The Gobblers carry a 7-3 regular season record into the contest while Ole Miss is 6-3-1.

Ole Miss has a versatile attack led by sophomore quarterback Archie Manning, halfback Steve Hindman and fullback John Bowen. Manning threw eight touchdown passes during the season.

Junior quarterback Al

Kincaid is expected to direct the Virginia Tech attack in a game which could be Jerry Claiborne's farewell as Gobblers coach. Claiborne is considered a leading candidate for the head coaching vacancy at Baylor.

Texas A&I, winner of the NAIA title in 1959, must stop Troy quarterback Sam Byrd if the Javelins expect to win. Byrd has thrown 34 touchdown passes this season — 12 in the last two games.

North Dakota State is rated a slight favorite over Arkansas State in the Pecan Bowl.

A battle of strong rushing offenses is expected in the Camellia Bowl outing between Fresno and Humboldt.

Earnel Durden, former all-West Coast wingback at Oregon State, was selected as assistant football coach Friday at UCLA.

Durden, 31, will assume his duties on Jan. 17.

Heavyweights Head Boxing Card at Aud

Long Beach Leadership Development (Harbor Boxing Gym) will stage its first Christmas amateur show tonight at 8 in Long Beach Auditorium.

Three heavy weight matches feature the eight-bout program. Top event will bring together Jim Elder, No. 3 ranked amateur in the nation, and Bunky Atkins, 1968 Golden Gloves champion. Elder lost to Atkins in the Golden Glove tournament, but defeated Atkins in semi-finals of the West Coast Olympic trials.

James Euligatone, of Wilmington and from Samoa, will mix with Greg Lazzano, while Alan Boursse is paired against Bill Gilchrist. All fighters on the program are 1969 Golden Gloves entrants.

At 83, Akron Grid Manager Exudes True College Spirit

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — At 83, Ed Babcox must be the oldest student football manager in the country.

Certainly, he will be the elder statesman among managers in post-season bowl games when he accompanies the Akron University Zips to Murfreesboro, Tenn., today for their appearance against Louisiana Tech in the Grantland Rice Bowl.

In attitude, however, Babcox will be right in step with the younger generation.

"Ed's been on a number of trips with us since he enrolled here," said coach

Gordon Larson. "The players and coaches always enjoy having him along."

Babcox explained that "being around sports gives me a chance to catch up with what I missed when I was in high school. Things were tough then and I had no time for sports. With things changed, I have a new perspective now."

Babcox, who started at Akron U. fulltime at age 80, enrolled as a political science major after a successful business career in which he founded Babcox Publications Inc. He still is chairman of the board.

Now a senior, Babcox hopes to finish in June. "That would mean I made it in four years," he said. "But some of these instructors have no mercy — it may take me an extra semester."

Besides watching a football team which he agrees may be the best in Zip history, Babcox also figures the trip to Tennessee will be nice for other reasons.

"It will be good to get away from school. My last examination this term was Wednesday and I'm ready to relax a bit."

Best of All Scores Victory in $25,000 Western Pace

Brilliant Best of All, making the next-to-last competitive appearance of his great career, established himself as the overwhelming favorite for next Friday night's $75,000 American Pacing Classic at Hollywood Park when he sped to a 1:58 1-5 victory in the featured $25,000 Western Pace Friday night.

Recording the 26th "magic" mile of his career, Best of All led virtually wire-to-wire in registering a two-length triumph over easterner Meadow Elva, with another Eastern invader, Overcall, finishing third.

Best of All, giving Bobby Williams his 50th winner of the meeting and the temporary lead in the Western Harness driving race, came home with a blistering 27 4-5 final quarter to seal the verdict and post his fifth straight win.

Samuel Huttenbauer, who recently sold Best of All to Hanover Shoe Farms for a reported $1 million, reiterated after the race that the swift son of Good Time would be retired after next week's Pacing Classic.

Best of All, ignoring any Friday the 13th jinx, was the 1-5 choice of the estimated 14,500 fans and returned $2.60, $2.40 and $2.10 across the board while creating a "mild" minus show pool of $2.43.

"I was very pleased with his effort tonight," said a smiling Williams in the winner's circle. "I thought the time was extremely good considering it was such a cold night."

Williams sent Best of All to the lead from his inside post as soon as the gate opened but Billy Houghton surprised nearly everyone when he gunned Meadow Elva into a momentary advantage going to the first quarter.

However, Williams wasted little time in pulling out with Best of All and regained the lead passing the first quarter in 28 4-5 and was never headed thereafter.

Best of All passed the half in 1:00 2-5 with a two-length margin, widened slightly at the three-quarters in 1:30 2-5 and then sailed home with his jet like final quarter to capture the $12,500 share of the $25,000 purse.

The triumph, 35th in 65 career starts, boosted Best of All's season earnings to $336,322 and his lifetime bank account to $533,899.

Best of All's 2.00 mile pushed him into third place on the all-time list of 2.00 performers, with only Bret Hanover (31) and Dan Patch (30) ranked ahead of him.

It was the 30th two-minute mile of the season and the eighth of the meet for Williams, breaking his own single-season record of seven, set three weeks ago with Sir Fafie.

HOOPLES AUCE — Tonight Western Harness will present co-features, the $10,000 American Classic Consolation Trot for horses not third or better in last week's American Trotting Classic, and the $10,000 Burbank Pace.

NEARING THE FINISH LINE

Night harness racing at Hollywood Park has entered its final two weeks. Featured race tonight is $10,000 American Trotting Classic Consolation. Climax of season will be the $75,000 American Pacing Classic next Friday night.

Benvenuti Risks Crown in TV Bout

SAN REMO, Italy (AP) — Don Fullmer's manager said Friday he wants six-ounce gloves, as used in U.S. boxing, for tonight's world middleweight title bout with champion Nino Benvenuti. But fight organizers gave a flat no.

Benvenuti's only two losses in his 80-bout career came when he wore six-ounce gloves.

A dispute developed when manager Angelo Curley told newsmen a whole range of questions remained to be ironed out. But promoter Rino Tommasi announced all details were settled.

It added to the picture of controversy and uncertainty building around the event which will be televised in the United States by ABC starting at 5 p.m. (PST). Leftwing students passed out handbills denouncing the high-priced event as "a capitalistic feast" and called for students from all over North Italy to demonstrate against it.

"By our action we hope to call attention to the poor and unknown aspects of San Remo," student organizers declared.

If enough students flood into this Riviera resort town to join the protest, the fight outside the Ariston Theater could rival the title bout inside for action. Police planned heavy reinforcements.

As Curley's worries came to light, a spokesman for the Tommasi organizers said: "Yes we may have a conference with Curley sometime. But I hardly see what the purpose would be. Everything has been decided long ago."

That was not how Curley and Fullmer saw it.

"We want to have the same rules they had in New York City when Benvenuti fought Emile Griffith," said Curley.

"We'll have to have all the rules ironed out pertaining to the bandaging of the hands, the gloves, the weigh-in, the rules about fighting inside."

"We want them to fight with one hand free on the inside. We don't want the referee to separate them."

Benvenuti's two defeats were by South Korea's Ki Soo Kim in Seoul June 25, 1966, and against Griffith in New York for the world championship Sept. 9, 1967.

The Italian's single draw was against little-known Doyle Baird in Akron, Ohio, last Oct. 14 — also with six-ounce gloves.

FORMER SWIM QUEEN HAS THROAT CANCER

SEATTLE (AP) — Helene Madison, queen of swimming 24 years ago, was reported in "stable and satisfactory" condition Friday night after a seven-hour operation for throat cancer.

Now a lonely woman of 34, all but forgotten by the world which once knew her as the Invincible Mermaid, Helene has been taking radiation treatment for the affliction.

Her surgeon said the operation was exploratory and its extent would not be known until it was under way. He said she would not lose her voice, which has turned husky in recent weeks.

The career of Helene Madison was brief but spectacular, climaxed by the winning of three Olympic gold medals in 1932. She started at the age of 15 and retired at 19, never losing a freestyle race in a competitive meet. At one time, she held every available world freestyle record for women — a total of 16.

She cannot recall how many American records she held but she owned them all, from 50 yards to the mile. The total was something over 100 ... all gone now but the memories.

Rough Road for Kings: Face TV Game 'Jinx'

PITTSBURGH (Special) — The Kings could have saved themselves some airline fare by mailing tonight's National Hockey League victory to the Pittsburgh Penguins.

Even if they survived Friday the 13th, they couldn't have more going against them tonight.

The game, starting a four-game trip has the Kings staking their three-game win streak against the league's worst road record and what may be the worst television rating in sports history.

—The Kings have won only once on alien ice this season, losing seven and tying two.

—Going back to last season, they are winless, with four ties, in their last 15 games on TV.

Tonight's game will be beamed on KTLA (5) at 5 p.m.

Zeidel on Waivers

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The Philadelphia Flyers of the National Hockey League placed defenseman Larry Zeidel on waivers Friday after he refused an assignment to their Quebec Aces farm club in the American Hockey League.

49ER PLAYERS HONORED Soccer Stars Announced

Tom McCarthy, Louis Szedlacek and Mike Faywood of the Cal State Long Beach Soccer Club were selected to the first team of the Southern California Inter-Collegiate Soccer Assn. all-Star team.

The three also were nominated for all-American honors as five other members of the 11-man

Long Beach team were selected to the second all-star team. They are Demosthenes Davetas, Bjorn Brodahl, Roskel Braggozo, John Wadas, and John DeJong.

Long Beach finished its first year of competition with a 5-1-1 record, good for third place in the SCICSA, one point behind the championship teams.

Casey's 'Stengelese' Even Baffles Police

Former New York Yankees manager Casey Stengel remained in satisfactory condition Friday in Glendale Memorial Hospital, recovering from auto accident injuries.

A spokesman said it has not been decided when the 78-year-old baseball Hall of Fame member will leave the hospital. Stengel and his wife, Edna, live in Glendale.

Deputy police chief Charles Kneller said an investigation is continuing. Two officers questioned Casey after the mishap. Apparently they came up with the same humorous confusion sports writers have encountered during most of Stengel's 55-year career in baseball. "You know Stengel," said Kneller. "When he starts in his 'Stengelese' it's difficult to know just what he's trying to say."

Stengel's car was involved in a collision with one driven by Mrs. Elsie Rickey, 27, of Glendale.

SEATTLE (AP) — Dorrie Murrey suffered a shoulder separation in a collision Thursday night during the Atlanta game and is lost to the Seattle Super-Sonics of the National Basketball Assn. for several months, possibly for the season.

FANFARE WOULD-BE GAL JOCKEY FILES SUIT

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A pretty teenage exercise girl at Tropical Park race track filed suit Friday, alleging she was denied a jockey's license because she is a woman.

Barbara Jo Rubin filed the suit against the State Racing Commission, Tropical Park stewards and Florida Racing Supervisor George Johnson Jr., claiming she was the victim of sex discrimination in violation of the civil rights act of 1964.

A hearing before Dade County Circuit Judge Jack Falk was set for Monday. Barbara Jo, 18, works for trainer Bryan Webb, a well-known horseman who promised to give her race mounts if she is licensed.

Pineda in Win, Trails by Three

Combined News Service

Alvaro Pineda had only one winner at Bay Meadows Friday but it enabled him to close the gap to three in his battle with pace-setting Angel Cordero for the 1968 national riding championship.

Pineda had a mount in eight of the nine races on Friday's card and the only time he was able to reach the winner's circle was after the fourth race when he booted Sweetums to a $6.60 victory.

Cordero was even worse off. He was shut out altogether while riding at Tropical Park in Florida.

However, he still is in front with 317 victories to Pineda's 314.

Meanwhile, Governor's Party stepped to an easy one and one-half length victory in the featured Westlake Purse to become the favorite for next Saturday's $50,000 added Bay Meadows Juvenile Handicap.

Big Mouth Sam was second in the field of six two-year-olds and Stallak wound up third. Hope Line, Pineda's mount in the race, wound up last.

Governor's Party stepped six furlongs in the rain in 1:10 3-5 and returned $2.80 as the 2-5 favorite.

Featuring the lean, national program today is the $20,000-added Tropical Hotel of Las Vegas Handicap at Bay Meadows.

Cash Makes Miseries Bearable

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Those school miseries the eighth-graders of School 52 revealed to much of the world may still be with them, but they've become more pleasant.

"We're famous," said one 13-year-old girl as she and her classmates looked forward to sharing what could amount to thousands of dollars.

The city's board of education cleared the way Wednesday for commercial publication of a book, to be called "School Is..." based on the miseries of Mrs. Theresa Lopata's class.

Mrs. Lopata had called on her class of 30 — 15 girls and 15 boys — to express in writing their opinion of school.

Back came the views, such as: "School is dropping all your books in the hall when you have a miniskirt on."

"School is when you have to go to the lavatory and the teacher doesn't believe you."

Mrs. Lopata, 24, and in her third year of teaching, thought the comments were so humorous she had them mimeographed. The youngsters sold their paperback books, entitled "Miseries United" in the neighborhood for five cents each to raise money for a graduation party.

Only hours after The Associated Press told of the effort in stories distributed in the United States and overseas, the telephones of Mrs. Lopata and Bertram A. Miller, the school principal, began ringing. Eight commercial magazines wanted to produce a professional book.

After consultation with city school officials, the eight-graders and their parents, Mrs. Lopata and Miller agreed to publication and signed a contract with the MacMillan Co. They have formed a corporation, whose members include the children's parents.

Miller said the first printing of the book was expected to be 50,000 copies. An artist will draw cartoons based on the youngsters' "miseries."

He and Mrs. Lopata received several hundred letters, many containing cash. Of the booklet sold in the neighborhood.

"Here's a dollar, please send me five copies and keep the rest of the money for your party," Miller said was written in a typical letter.

He and Mrs. Lopata are returning about $100, he said, because the school did not have a second printing.

Downey Paving Job to Start

Work on the final phase of the improvement of Brookshire Avenue, a north-south thoroughfare in Downey, will start Monday under a $17,901 contract awarded to J. J. Mahoney of Costa Mesa. The entire Brookshire street improvement program will cost about $85,000, according to Ervin Spindel, public works director.

The new work will include the installation of curbs, gutters, sidewalks and street paving from a point 220 feet north of Sixth Street to 190 feet south of Sixth Street. When completed, Brookshire will be a fully paved street with curbs and gutters from Florence Avenue to Gardendale Street on the south.

Course for Adults Set in Driver Education

A 13-week course in driver education will be offered adults by the Bellflower Adult School starting in February. The class will be limited to 36 students.

Reservations for advanced registration, which is required, may be made with Principal Arthur Simpson at Bellflower High School.
